WLB REQUESTS LABOR ACCEPT RULING CALMLY

'Little Steel' Decision Sets General Policy on Wage Increases.

CUTS UNION DEMAND

Action Permits Pay Boost of 15 Per Cent Over Jan. 1, 1941.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The War Labor board called upon organized labor today to accept with "self-restraint and statesmanship" a wage stabilization policy which permitted an increase of 44 cents a day for "Little Steel" workers, instead of $1 asked by the union.

The policy, made public late yesterday in the board's decision on the case, was designed to maintain the purchasing power of hourly wage rates as of January, 1941.

"We are convinced," said the opinion of Chairman William H. Davis, "that the yardstick of wage stabilization thus applied are fair and equitable and at the same time sufficient to prevent the cost of living from spiraling upward because of wage adjustments. We think they lead to a 'terminal' for the tragic race between wages and prices.

"On this basis labor will have made its move of self-restraint in the seven-point (anti-inflation) program. If all other groups likewise do their part we may expect to get and hold for the duration of the war stability of standards, and the freedom from apprehension that goes with such stability."

Pending a meeting with the steel union's policy committee in Pittsburgh today, Philip Murray, president of the union as well as the CIO, declined comment.

Dr. George W Taylor, writing the principal opinion on wages, said "this directive order calls directly upon the steel workers, and indirectly upon all labor, to accept the sacrifices which are their share under the national program for adjusting our domestic economy to the needs of total war."

The policy would permit total

Here's Real News! There's Surplus Of Harvest Hands

Richland county farmers, who had trouble finding enough workers to help them do their spring planting, now have plenty of harvest hands available, Manager C. W. Handley of the Mansfield office of the Ohio Employment service said today.

"It sounds like the impossible, but we actually have more farm workers listed at the employment center than we have been able to place on farms," Handley said.

The harvest season is nearly at its peak now in the county and this is the season when farm hands usually are in greatest demand.

Handley attributed the changed farm labor situation to the fact that many farmers have adjusted themselves to the wartime picture by helping each other with their work and getting more members of their families to help with the harvest.

FDR Studies Ways to Control Living Costs

Considers Request to Congress for More Effective Price Program Including Stabilizing of Wages.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said today he has under study plans to ask congress for more effective controls to keep the cost of living down, including wage control.

Questioned during his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt refused to discuss specific points of his program but he reiterated his basic policy of opposing any action which would increase the cost of living.

The president said he had not reached a definite decision but that he was studying the possibility of communicating with congress on the general program to hold down the cost of living.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked for his reaction to the 44-cents-a-day wage increase awarded by the war labor board to workers in the "little steel" industry.

The entire national problem of wages is relative, he replied, and in production of an article like steel an increase of 5 per cent in the wages would not force up the cost of living nearly so much as a comparable increase in a canning factory that produces food.

The president said, however, he was studying the question of whether the proposed increase for little steel would boost the price of steel.

He said he had discussed the steel wage situation with CIO President Philip Murray as part of his overall study of the anti-inflation program, but he declined to give any specific details of the conference with the CIO leader.

The whole thing, the president said, in discussing the cost of living picture, is relative. But the national situation as regards the cost of living must be kept in line as much as possible, he continued.

The relationship of wage levels in one industry to another is part of the study, he said, but the most important basic policy is to keep the cost of living from going up.

Richland Draft Boards Stick to Old Regulations

Local draft board officials received orders today from state draft headquarters to fill July quotas without regard for recent national orders setting up special categories which give married men comparative deferment.

Mansfield selective service directors said that although the boards will follow the national category order in classifying draftees at present, men previously classified under the old system and needed to fill the quota will leave in the next contingent scheduled to be called in within the next week.

Officials explained that re-classification of men called up for the

SUBS SINK FOUR

Torpedo American Vessel Anchored In Gulf.

(By Associated Press)

The navy has announced the sinking of four more United Nation's merchant ships in the western Atlantic, making an unofficial total of 395 since the middle of January.

The four sinkings revealed yesterday included two medium-sized American merchant ships, a Norwegian freighter and a small Norwegian merchant ship.

A submarine slipped in close to shore to torpedo one of the American vessels, which was blacked out and anchored on a clear moonless night, in the Gulf of Mexico. Flames quickly enveloped the bridge and forward part of the ship and 27 men lost their lives.

The second American ship was sunk off the North Atlantic coast of South America on an undisclosed date. One man was lost.

3RD MOLESTING CASE REPORTED

Special Police Detail Named To Hunt Assailant of Mansfield Women.

Following the third molesting within a week—the latest resulting in the severe beating and threatening of the life of a young woman Thursday evening—Police Chief Thomas M. Bell today detailed special officers to seek out the offenders.

In the latest offense, Rose Hillman, 466 Daisy street, was attacked by a colored man at North Main and Harker streets as she was en route to work at the Phoenix hotel restaurant. In her story to police, Miss Hillman said the molester fled when she first spurned his offer of $5 if she would submit to his attentions.

Shortly afterward, as Miss Hillman was crossing the B. & O. tracks on Surry road the man again grabbed her, attempting to drag her toward nearby freight cars.

"I'll kill you if you try to call the law," Miss Hillman said the man growled at her While struggling to free herself from his clutches the would-be victim screamed for aid Hei assailant knocked her to the ground three times before fleeing along the tracks when he noted the approach of several railroad workers.

Patrolmen E. E. Hartnett, William Colby and J. L. Grohol searched the railroad yards and vicinity but found no one answering the description furnished by Miss Hillman.

"We will strive to stamp out this molesting at once," declared Chief Bell, indicating that a general roundup of suspicious persons might result.

Confidence of an early arrest in the Hillman slugging was voiced by police authorities. Meanwhile, officers are seeking a "thin man" who bothered two girls Tuesday night and another girl Wednesday night.

Heroes' Day Bond and Stamp Sales Off to Racing Start

Director's of Mansfield's special war bond and stamp sales drive in connection with the observance of American Heroes day were confident at noon today that their quota of $35,000 to be met by sales today and tomorrow would be reached easily.

Ray M. Calene, chairman of the Retail Merchants association committee in charge of the drive, said that more than $3,700 worth of stamps were sold in the first two hours of the sale and that sales were increasing steadily.

More than 500 sales persons taking part in the sales drive attended a "pep" meeting held at Central park prior to the opening of stores at 9 a. m. Approximately 1,000 sales persons are selling bonds and stamps in the campaign.

Calene reported that one woman walked up to a sales booth in front of the Kobacher store and planked down $500, asking for "all the bonds that can buy." Other large sales were reported by many stores.

The Batson Furniture company was the first to report on its sales and reported that $1,100 worth of bonds and stamps had been sold in the first few minutes of business.

All of today's celebration was not taken up in sales. Four persons were to receive certificates from the City of Mansfield for "meritorious service" in the war effort at a public ceremony today at 3 p. m. in Central park.

Those to be honored were Mrs.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—An air alarm sounded in London this afternoon. The alarm was the first in daytime since March 16th when a single enemy raider penetrated the Thames estuary sector but failed to appear over the center of London.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO—British troops holding newly-won advance positions in the center of the El Alamein line have been fighting off violent attacks since yesterday in a great battle of armored forces which still is continuing, general headquarters said today.

Sharp fighting also was reported at the southern end of the line, where the enemy was said to have withdrawn slightly, and in the coastal sector to the north.

The communique gave no hint as to how the battle in the center was going, but said that a number of enemy tanks had been knocked out.

Other dispatches indicated much of the armored strength of both sides was engaged in the struggle and it appeared that a crisis in the battle for Egypt was near.

British headquarters said that the RAF was strongly supporting the imperial ground forces and that bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters were continuing to hammer at the enemy around the clock.

The immediate objective of the attacks against the British center was a position on Ruweisat ridge, running east and west 10 miles south of the coast.

Observers said the position would have to be erased before the Axis forces could make any advance elsewhere.

From the scale of the action,

Soldier Sentenced For Deaths of Three Australian Women.

MELBOURNE — (AP) — Private Edward J. Leonski, former New York City grocery clerk, was convicted by a United States military court today of the slaying of three Melbourne women and was condemned to death by hanging.

The 10-member tribunal debated barely 50 minutes before announcing its verdict, which is subject to review by the commanding general of the United States armed forces in Australia.

Leonski had been under arrest since mid-May, a few days after the body of Miss Gladys Hoskins, 40, a university chemistry school secretary, was found near an army camp. She and two other women had been strangled.

Police Scour New York State Area for Reported 'Chutists

Second Report In Week Tells About Parachutes Coming Down Near Roosevelt Hyde Park Estate.

(By International News Service)

RHINEBECK, N. Y.—This sleepy little town on the Hudson river was a beehive of activity today as army officials and state and local police continued to investigate reports that six "parachutists" were seen floating from the sky yesterday.

The report was the second received by authorities this week, an earlier account telling of a single parachute spotted in the air over the Adirondack mountain town of Athol, near Glens Falls, was made last Tuesday.

Neither of the reports have been confirmed officially but the army eastern defense command launched an immediate military investigation. FBI authorities also were notified but no immediate comment was available from this source.

New York state police broadcast an eight-state alarm following receipt of the reports All automobiles over a wide area were stopped and occupants closely questioned. Hitch-hikers and pedestrians, likewise, were made to give an account of themselves.

Seriousness of the second report, if true, was in the fact that the "chutists" were reported descending not far from the Hyde Park estate of President Roosevelt.

Acknowledging receipt of the news, the army merely stated that an official military investigation was under way, adding nothing to details already in the hands of state police.

Significant in the announcement, however, was the fact that army officials referred to the reported "parachutists" as "parachutes." When later questioned on this point, an army spokesman merely repeated the official statement, stressing the word "parachutes."

State police questioned residents of the vicinity who told of seeing the parachutes. Some were specific in saying that the

War Workers Left Stranded as Bus Drivers Strike

DETROIT—(AP)—Motor bus operators striking contrary to advice of their AFL union leaders, halted buses on Detroit's east side today, ejected the non-striking drivers and forced passengers to alight.

Many passengers, en route to jobs in war plants or office buildings, were left stranded, and police were ordered to arrest any one found interfering with the buses.

The strikers, employes of Detroit's department of street railways, are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL). They complained about delay on wage arbitration proceedings.

Edward McMorrow, international vice-president of the union, called the strike action "dangerous, foolhardy, illegal, irresponsible and unpatriotic."

A portion of the city's transportation equipment rolled past picket lines to provide at least partial service.

WALKOUT ENDS

CANTON—(AP)—An end to a walkout which began Tuesday night was voted by roll turners in the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation plant. Meanwhile, negotiations will continue on their request for a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, retroactive to April 1.

THE HEAT'S ON!

Mercury Hits 91 at Noon, and Heads For Summer Record.

The mercury steamed up to 91 degrees at noon today and headed for a new season's mark as a heat wave enveloped the Mansfield area.

There is little chance of relief from the heat very soon, the weatherman said, although he predicted scattered thundershowers tonight may cool the air temporarily in some sections of the state.

Last night was the warmest night of the summer in Mansfield, but it didn't seem so bad because the humidity was low. The mercury remained above 73 degrees throughout the night.

Cities over a wide area in the middlewest today reported 90-degree readings. It was 91 in Columbus, 92 in Cincinnati, and close to 100 at points in the south and southwest.

10 of 14 Confederates of Nazi Saboteurs Are Accused of Hindering Arrests.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The trial of eight Nazi saboteurs resumed today before a military commission and U. S. attorneys in three districts drafted formal charges against 10 of the 14 persons recently apprehended as their accomplices.

Attorney General Francis Biddle, who authorized the district attorneys to act, said yesterday the 10 defendants would be accused of "unlawfully knowing and receiving and assisting" the Nazi group "in order to hinder their apprehension, trial and punishment."

Describing the saboteurs as "enemies of the United States, and acting for and on behalf of the German reich," Biddle said they unlawfully entered this country "for the purpose of committing acts of sabotage, espionage, and other hostile acts."

Three of those arrested as accomplices were arraigned yesterday on presidential warrants charging them with being "dangerous enemy aliens." A fourth, Ernest Herman Kerkhof, still is

JAB FOE AT VORONEZH

Counter Attack Strongly In North; Report Hitler Loss 900,000 in 60 Days.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Masses of German infantry supported by their heaviest tanks—a force of perhaps 1,000,000 all told—marched through the lush, waist-high wheatfields of the Don steppes in a continuing offensive today as the Red army fell back both toward Stalingrad and Rostov.

Mindful of increasing threats to both of these important centers on the Volga elbow and the lower Don which flank each side of the entrance to the Caucasus, the Red army fought stubbornly from well-defended Voronezh on the north to the flat, river-wrinkled country southeast of Millerovo.

Near a river crossing southeast of Millerovo, 200 miles south of Voronezh, the Soviet fighters were reported to have handed a heavy blow to the invaders.

This crossing was not named, but it was believed the German advance had not yet surged to the junction where the east-west railway from Stalingrad joins the main Rostov-Moscow line.

(This might indicate that heavy fighting took place near Kamensk, or east of there. Kamensk is on the Donets 40 miles south of Millerovo. The Germans claimed they had cut the railway connecting Stalingrad with the Donets.)

As the Russians fell back through fields which were to have played a large part in feeding their people this winter, reports told how the countryside was left littered with German dead, the fuming wrecks of burned out tanks, and the snarled ruins of guns and trucks.

In one other sector of this front, the Russians reported a hard punch in which 11 invading tanks were smashed and 1,800 Germans killed.

But the dispatches said the Ger-

Committee O. K.'s Bill To Outlaw Commissions.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The house naval affairs committee today voted unanimously to report favorably a bill to outlaw payment of contingent fee commissions to agents of navy contractors, after Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., said the profits of such agents were "shocking the country."

Contingent fee commissions represent a fixed percentage of the value of a given contract if the agent is successful in securing the contract.

The legislation was heartily endorsed by Robert E. Kline, Jr., special assistant to Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, who told the committee the "stupendous" sums realized by sales representatives had been "scandalous."

Plane-Gun-Tank Team Decides War Issues, Sen. Lodge Asserts

(Editor's Note: Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R., Mass.) in the last of a series of three articles written for International News Service says that the genius of America will not stop until it has produced many weapons to defeat the Axis and urges everyone on the home front to back up our allies to the limit.)

U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, Major in Army Reserves, and Member of Senate Military Affairs Committee

Written Exclusively for International News Service

WASHINGTON—North Africa is fundamentally an air theatre. This war's decisive factor has been the plane-gun-tank team. The side with overwhelming superiority in the air has a great advantage.

The most effective aid we can give to British empire forces in the battle of North Africa, I believe, would be to send them planes and more planes.

It takes time to land troops in large numbers to the far away Middle East — two or three months. When you land soldiers abroad your job has just begun. They must be conditioned after they land — conditioned to the climate and the country in which they are going to fight.

There must be a steady stream of replacements and supplies in huge quantities. It takes time to unload these supplies and to assemble them in their respective groupings, to establish the line of supplies—many, many details to be taken care of in order to develop the perfect result. A slip along the line and the machine jams up further along.

After the troops land in the battle country there must be a lot of studying by the officers.

mans were unmindful of these losses, throwing in more men and machines strongly supported by air forces, as they advanced upon Stalingrad, now less than 175 miles from the flaming front, and Rostov perhaps 130 miles to the southwest.

At Voronezh Russian chances brightened with every new counter-attack the stiffened Red army forces were throwing against the invaders.

But the Germans apparently were still clinging to positions at the west side of the city, and the danger to the city from the south, was not lessened.

North and northwest of the city the Germans had been thrown back, leaving a trail of broken machines and bodies.

Izvestia said Germans were dying before Voronezh on a larger scale than they did at Sevastopol. The Russians have reported that 60,000 Germans lost their lives taking the latter stronghold in the Crimea.

The Soviet information bureau estimated that Adolf Hitler already had lost 900,000 men in 60 days of spring and summer warfare.

"In some sectors of the Voronezh front, the initiative has passed into Soviet hands," a communique announced. "The Germans are on the defensive."

Dispatches said the Russians pounded the invaders with surprising tank strength in several areas, forcing them to take cover.

Twin breaks were reported made in invasion formations west of Voronezh, which Maj. Gen. Nikolai Zhuravlev, a Red army commentator, described as "a mill to grind German troops crossing the Don into a bloody pulp."

Critical conditions persisted for Red army divisions fighting within the Don river bend to check the threat of an invasion of industrial Stalingrad, now less than 175 miles east of the front, and the more distant Caucasian oil fields below the Don.

Southeast of Nazi-occupied Millerovo—itself 200 miles south of Voronezh and 130 miles north of Rostov—another fighting withdrawal of outnumbered Soviet forces was reported.

"In this area," the Soviet information bureau said, "the men of one of our units in three days have killed about 4,000 Hitlerites and destroyed 35 German tanks."

A Nazi spearhead was reported routed by Red army infantry and armored detachments which killed 1,800 Germans and destroyed 11 of their tanks. This was one of a series of actions to beat off strong Nazi flanking maneuvers.

Nazi thrusts were declared stalemated on the Voronezh battlefield, "littered with German corpses and dozens of burned out enemy tanks."

"Our tanks pursued the retreating Germans, broke into a populated place, destroyed two artillery batteries and seven heavy machineguns and wiped out more than 200 Germans," the bureau said.

On the Bryansk front, 200 miles northwest of Voronezh, Russian dispatches said the Germans were observed massing tanks and motorized infantry, and that Soviet bombing raids in two days killed 3,000 of these troops in one sector and 2,000 in another.

Prisoners and escaped Russians were quoted as reporting that behind the German lines makeshift hospitals were jammed with wounded, while endless streams of others moved back from the fronts.

"The chief of the Russian general staff already is in the city, around which strong reinforcements of the newly formed central Asiatic army are concentrated," the report added.

Private Funeral To Be Given War Veteran Who Ended Own Life Yesterday.

Private funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Byerly funeral home in Lucas for Oscar F. Jones, 46, who took his own life with a shotgun yesterday at his home, 217 North Mulberry street.

Jones, veteran of the first World war, served 28 months overseas with the field artillery. He suffered a slight wound on his right leg.

Acting Coroner L. A. Hautzenroeder said Jones shot himself in the head yesterday in an upstairs room as two policemen waited to take him before David Lantz, county probation officer, for questioning regarding reports that Jones had violated his probation on a shooting with intent to wound charge.

Surviving are the widow, Helen; one son, Donald, at home; two daughters, Mary Alice, at home, and Mrs. Anna Mae Taylor of Harrisburg, Miss.; three brothers, Walter of Lucas, Dewey and Herschel of Mt. Vernon, and a half-sister, Mrs. Rose Ross, Mansfield.

DISCUSS SHIPS

Ambassador, Welles Confer on Position of French Fleet.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye planned to confer today with Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles on the French fleet problem at Alexandria, Egypt.

French warships are docked in Alexandria, threatened by Nazi General Erwin Rommel, and the British are determined they will not fall into German hands. That determination may lead to sinking of the vessels if the British have to abandon the port.

Henry-Haye presumably will carry to the state department official word from Vichey chief of government Pierre Laval. Laval has decided to resist British seizure of the vessels. He ordered his ships not to leave Alexandria with British ships. That order was interpreted here to mean that the French will scuttle the vessels in the harbor or attempt to dash to French bases.

REQUESTS LABOR KEEP RESTRAINT

wage increases up to 15 per cent, reckoning from Jan. 1, 1941, to May, 1942, the approximate time the president's anti-inflation program was promulgated. The increases would cover an equivalent increase in the cost of living. After May, 1942, the board assumed the cost of living would be stabilized by the operation of all seven points of the president's program.

Though allowed less than half of its wage demand, the union largely won the rest of its case. The board granted union security in the form of a maintenance of membership clause combined with the company checkoff (collection) of union dues, and a minimum daily wage guarantee. The full union shop had been asked.

Labor members of the board, outvoted 8 to 4 by the industry and public members, filed a dissent saying the board substituted "rhetoric for analysis" and went "all-out for the inflation thesis, a thesis compounded of conjectures and prophecies, fears and hysteria."

The four so-called little steel companies directly affected were Bethlehem, Republic, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. They employ about 157,000 workers represented by the CIO United steelworkers.

CIO Dissatisfied With WLB Pay Hike

BETHLEHEM, Pa. —(AP)— The executive committee of five CIO United Steel Workers local unions expressed dissatisfaction today with the war labor board's recommendation of a 44-cent-a-day increase for "Little Steel" employes and described the situation in this steel center as "tense and explosive."

The WLB decision is "causing definite unrest in the Bethlehem steel plant here," the committee declared in telegrams to President Roosevelt, CIO President Philip Murray, and William H. Davis, WLB chairman.

The committee said the WLB ignored the findings of a panel which heard the union-company arguments on a $1-a-day increase.

Bethlehem officials declined comment until the formal report of the WLB had been received and studied.

Murray Faces Grave Decision on Strike

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — CIO President Philip Murray and 125 local union presidents of the CIO-United Steel Workers were faced with a grave decision today—strike or accede to the ruling of the war labor board.

While strike talk generally was in the air following the WLB's decision to grant "little steel" employes a 44-cent-a-day raise instead of the sought for $1, Murray was reminded of his repeated pledges to President Roosevelt of "all out" support to the war effort and "no strikes" for the duration.

But some observers were pessimistic over Murray's ability to keep in check the rising tide of resentment from the rank and file throughout the nation.

Howard Hague, assistant to David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the USWA, said:

"We've been receiving countless numbers of telegrams from all over the country protesting the WLB's decision. All are asking us to refuse to abide by the ruling."

Hague also stated that telegrams have been sent to President Roosevelt and to WLB Chairman William H. Davis, complaining that the board members "sold out" to Leon Henderson.

Bagged Four Japs at Midway

This is Lieut. (J. G.) Arthur James Brassfield of Browning, Mo., who shot down four Japanese planes during the battle of Midway island, thereby raising his total of downed Jap planes in the Pacific to seven as shown by the "rising sun" flags painted on his plane. Plane-Gun-Tank Team Decides War Issues, Sen. Lodge Asserts

In this war we are fighting in all kinds of terrain.

A soldier who happens to get away from his main body of troops during a dust storm or at night finds it well-nigh impossible to find his way back without a compass. His compass is his ever-ready reference.

In the North African desert one has to become accustomed to the water. It is brakish. But after a few days one is used to the water and mighty grateful to have some of it. One learns there how to conserve water—how to govern his drinking of it in order to make a little water meet his needs.

I found that it was a good idea to drink water only early in the morning and at night, and to go without it during the hot day time. Some times the soldiers when at a distance from water sources have to get along on a pint of water a day. Fortunately, the nights are cool and enable one to sleep well, provided a battle is not in progress.

Naturally, our people are eager to know whether our tanks and other weapons are as good as or superior to those of our enemy. I would say that we have fine manpower and good equipment. Our tanks are being constantly improved as battle experience dictates.

Superiority in tanks, of course, is constantly sought by both sides in the war. As in airplanes which are constantly improved so in tanks. Battle experience with our M-3 tanks revealed several ways in which they could be improved. These improvements are incorporated in the M-4 tank, which is being produced in great numbers.

I want to praise the British soldiers for their persistence in the war. They are truly models of patience. They are heartened by the war effort of the United States. Let us strive on the home front to back up all of our Allies in this struggle to the limit of our ability. We have declared war upon the Axis powers and we shall triumph.

Our soldiers will give a good account of themselves when they go into battle. Our troops in Libya showed the kind of stuff our soldiers are made of in war or peace.

I would like to see our troops get into the land fighting in a big way—a lot at once in the typically American way, with no half-way measures, no piece-meal attacks—a concentrated thrust that will overwhelm our foes.

FBI Raids 65 Homes In Drive on Bund

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— The homes of 65 German aliens were raided early today and last night in widespread searches throughout New Jersey as the federal bureau of investigation renewed its drive on the German-American bund.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the Newark and New York offices of the FBI, said a quantity of wartime contraband was seized and an undisclosed number of persons taken into custody.

The raids were directed, Conroy said, at the homes of every German alien in the state, not in custody already, who belonged to the bund or who was known to have visited the bund's Camp Nordland at Andover regularly.

The FBI last week arrested national, sectional and regional leaders of the German-American bund in a nationwide roundup.

observers believed Marshal Erwin Rommel, whose German-Italian forces have been stalled before El Alamein since June 30, might be staking everything on a new all-out attempt to push on to Alexandria, 75 or 80 miles away.

While the heaviest fighting was reported in the central sector, a see-saw battle also was surging around Tel El Eisa (Hill of Jesus) on the coast.

Military advices received here last night said counter-attacking Australian troops had recaptured the Tel El Eisa ridge yesterday only to be driven out again by enemy infantry and tanks.

Heavy artillery duels were reported along the entire front and aerial activity was growing in intensity, with the Germans calling upon plane reserves which they apparently had been saving for a crucial moment.

The battle in the central sector was joined Wednesday. The British pushed forward about seven miles and occupied a ridge approximately 12 miles southwest of El Alamein—presumably with the intention of relieving pressure on Australian forces in the coastal salient.

The enemy began throwing heavier armor into the struggle late yesterday and by nightfall the battle had swelled to such proportions that its outcome threatened to prove a decisive factor in the campaign.

RAF Rips German Sub-Building Yards

LONDON —(AP)— A force of Stirlings, Britain's biggest four-engined bombers struck at Germany before the fall of darkness last night in an attack on submarine building yards five miles from hard-hit Luebeck and on shipyards at Flensburg, near the German-Danish border.

The raids carried to a climax daylight raids yesterday on objectives in Germany which opened with single-plane assaults on the Ruhr.

Details of the Luebeck and Flensburg attacks were meager. An air ministry communique said the bombs were seen to burst in yards and slipways of the submarine building yards near Luebeck.

'General Lee' Tanks Enter Egypt Fight

CAIRO —(AP)— British troops, engaged in a violent and still indecisive tank battle in the center of the El Alamein desert line, were reported today to have brought up American-made General Lee tanks to give additional power to their defense.

The General Lee, an improved version of the General Grant, mounts 75 millimeter guns in the turret instead of at the side and has streamlined armor. The General Grants previously had proved a mainstay of British armored forces in the desert.

20,000 Japs Trapped In South China

CHUNGKING —(INS)— A Japanese army of 20,000 has been trapped at Linchwan, in the south China province of Kiangsi, and faces annihilation unless it can escape northeastward to the Japanese base at Nanchang, Chinese military quarters reported today.

During the past few days Chinese forces have driven the enemy out of outposts of Linchwan on three sides, and today the nearly encircled Japanese faced the alternative of fighting it out with reinforced Chinese armies or giving up the town and trying to escape to Nanchang.

Jubilant Chinese officers in Chungking hailed the reports from the Kiangsi front as presaging a great defeat for the Japanese who were reported beginning to move military equipment out of Linchwan, which was taken as evidence that they were not going to risk a battle there with the growing Chinese forces closing in on the town.

(The Tokyo radio was heard today broadcasting a report that Japanese naval forces had landed troops near the port of Wenchow in Fukien province and were driving inland in the direction of Panshihwei. Wenchow was occupied by the Japanese on Sunday. This left Foochow, 180 miles to the south, as the only remaining port of importance held by the Chinese.)

Chinese forces were still active in the Wenchow area, and yesterday reported recapture of Tsingtien 23 miles inland.

Fighting was reported still going on even closer to Wenchow.

Heavy fighting was also reported from several areas in Honan province, several hundred miles northwest of Wenchow, and in Shansi province, north of Honan province.

The city will present similar certificates to others persons, living or dead, who distinguish themselves in the war effort, whether on the battle front, industrial front, or in other civilian action.

The Lumbermans Mutual Insurance company reported that it had purchased $50,000 worth of war bonds as its expression toward celebrating American Heroes day. Although the purchase will not be included in the quota set for the special merchants drive, Paul Eliot, chairman of county bond sales, said that it would be a great help in meeting the county's July quota of $587,000.

"There must be a breaking off point somewhere," said one of the officials. Those classified before the category orders came through who are needed to fill the call will be sent this month. Others classified but not called will be re-classified along with the new cases."

Local draft officials said that they were observing the "original" category order in making classifications at present. This order broke eligible draftees into four groups ranging from the single man not in defense work to the married men with children and in defense work.

More recent federal orders naming six categories within the same framework have not been received locally as yet. Draft officials said that the new orders would be observed as soon as they are received.

MANSFIELDER WINS VERDICT

R. Ferguson Awarded $40,000 In Damage Suit Against Cincinnatian.

ASHLAND—A verdict of $40,000 in favor of Roy N. Ferguson of Mansfield was returned by a jury in Ashland common pleas court Thursday against Charles Melarno of Cincinnati.

Ferguson asked damages of $50,000 for injuries, including amputation of his right leg, which resulted from an automobile accident on route 42, three miles south of West Salem on March 23, 1941.

Ferguson, an employe of the State Highway department, was riding on the rear of a station wagon which was struck by Melarno's car.

All 12 members concurred on the verdict, and also on a finding of questions of act. Evidence was introduced showing that Melarno was found guilty of driving while intoxicated on the morning following the accident at a hearing at Samaritan hospital where he was taken for minor injuries sustained in the accident and fined $100 and costs by Justice R. R. Teeter.

In the finding on question of facts the jurors agreed that evidence showed that the defendant was wilful and malicious in driving his car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and that the defendant's driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was apparent cause of the accident and the plaintiff's injuries.

Atty. John L. Catlett of Mansfield represented Ferguson.

The jurors also returned a verdict of $2,000 in favor of Willard Devenney against Emil Lowe for injuries the plaintiff received in an automobile collision with Lowe's truck on Claremont avenue in Ashland Jan. 16, 1940.

Devenney alleged that Lowe parked his truck without leaving on any lights on the Ashland street and went to sleep and that he (Devenney) was unable to see the truck and struck it. He asked damages of $3,100.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1942.

A questionnaire has been sent to business men inviting suggestions on ways to cut down on questionnaires.

It now appears that congressmen are to have unlimited gasoline for campaigning—but some of the wiser ones may choose train travel.

In any event, Mansfielders are soon to have opportunity to decide whether they consider "Mrs. Miniver" the best motion picture of "all time," as some critics aver, or merely "the best picture of the year."

No Basis for Optimistic Predictions

AN UNFORTUNATE thing about talkative congressmen is that many people credit them with knowing what they are talking about—as in the case of Congressman Andrew J. May's recent expression of belief that the war "might possibly end this year, and certainly before the end of next year."

Regardless of the basis of Congressman May's belief, and however high his authority, he cannot know what isn't yet known by anybody and his opinion probably holds little more value than that of a discussion leader in a village store.

Progress of the war to date, with Axis forces still in the ascendency wherever the strength of their effort has been concentrated, gives no indication of probable quick victory for the United Nations—and surely Congressman May's prediction was not based on the possibility of any other eventual outcome.

Whether it be a senator, congressman, any other employe of government, or merely the man on the street, the cause of the United Nations is not being well served by spread of belief that the war will be short or that victory will be easy.

It is unlikely that the war can be brought to conclusion with complete victory for the United Nations either this year or next—and the only safe course is to continue preparations for a long, hard struggle, with recognition that heavy responsibility rests on the United States and its people.

Petrillo Bans School Concert

UNLESS some stopping place can be prescribed soon it appears that recent dictatorial orders issued by James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, may serve to do the cause of unionized musicians more harm than good.

Latest of President Petrillo's pronouncements is that a concert by high school students at Interlochen, Mich., must not be put on the air. These students receive training in music and their broadcasts were designed to demonstrate their own talent and to encourage other young people to learn and appreciate good music.

It was Petrillo, further back, who issued an edict that concerts given by military post bands were not to be broadcast, and it is noted that another of his orders, to become effective July 31, prohibits the 140,000 members of his organization from making phonograph records, electrical transcriptions or any form of electrically reproduced music.

His motive, it is explained, is to encourage employment of bands, orchestras and instrumental ensembles in various places of entertainment, instead of permitting use of recorded music.

It is regrettable that Mr. Petrillo deems it necessary, in the interest of union musicians, to withdraw the pleasure, relaxation and inspiration of music from millions of Americans at a time when they are living under the stress and strain of war.

It seems probable that at least some union musicians will not approve of the Petrillo edict—but what can they do about it? Orders are orders.

The American Federation of Musicians, like the American Federation of Teachers, is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

Birth Certificates Not Required

ABANDONMENT of requirement for a birth certificate as a preliminary to employment in war industry, seems a sensible action, as it is behavior after birth, rather than time and place of advent into the world, that should determine eligibility for any position of trust.

Earlier Americans didn't attach much importance to keeping birth records and sudden demand for certificates of birth presented some rather difficult problems, even for many native-born citizens as well as for naturalized persons who have lived in this country for many years, with nothing known against their character, and who are registered voters.

The fact that birth certificates are no longer required should not, however, prevent careful scrutiny of the record of all persons employed in war industries—as present loyal Americanism is the vitally important test that each should meet.

Nazi Way of Doing Business

NAZI methods of control over business are at least partially disclosed by action in Holland, where the Ford Automobile company passed into the hands of German invaders.

The company was forced to increase its issued nominal capital by more than a million dollars and the Nazi commissar fixed the 1941 dividend at 5 per cent on the increased capital, as against the previous dividend of 8 per cent on the old capital.

This control does not extend to the United States, however, and will not have even a remote effect on production of bombers by the Ford plants in Detroit—except possibly to speed it up.

Davis Promises 'Straight News'

ELMER DAVIS, director of war information, says he is going to see that the American people get the bad news along with the good, except in cases where it must be withheld for purely military reasons.

It is important to be frank and realistic about the war news. It is easy to slip into a habit of playing up the good news and playing down the bad, but in such cases a reckoning is sure to come sooner or later. People who have been coddled into a belief that they are invincible, and are winning everywhere, may suffer a terrific drop in morale, and also in confidence in their army and government, when the truth comes out. It is far better to be honest all along.

Debt-Payment Exemption Unlikely

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The reason why congress has not so far approved deductions from income for life insurance premiums and debt payments, and why probably the final bill will not contain exemptions for these two types of almost compulsory payments, is simply that they would result in favoritism to the persons thus exempted, as against persons with the same gross incomes who did not have to make such payments.

The more obvious of the two is the person with debts. Here is a man who is buying a house, and making payments we will say aggregate $500 a year on the principal of his debt. He has no choice about it. Either he must keep up the payments or he will lose his home. When the new income taxes go into effect that man will be up against it to find enough to live on after he has paid the interest and partial payment of his debt and his taxes.

Before the taxes were boosted, we will assume, he had to cut corners, but he COULD get by. Since that time his cost of living has increased very largely in addition to the boost in his taxes.

But one can get the viewpoint of the congressmen by looking at a case of a man with exactly the same income, who is NOT buying a house, but paying rent, or else who had saved up enough to pay for his home and have no mortgage on it.

SUPPOSE now that the war should last for three years. It is almost certain that we will be paying the highest rate of taxes we reach during the war for a good many years after the war ends. In no other way can there be any thought of paying for the bulk of the war expenses, only a small fraction of which can be paid out of current taxes.

There will come a time when Taxpayer A in this illustration has built himself a stake, with tax free savings, as a result. He will have paid off the debt on his house and thus acquired a substantial bit of property. Whereas Taxpayer B will have gone on paying rent during this period, and, if he saved anything for his old age, out of every dollar of that saving he would have paid a heavy tax into the federal treasury.

Thus the plan for relieving the man in debt will actually result in penalizing very heavily the man whose financial affairs are not geared to take advantage of this exemption.

THIS stands out like a sore thumb to the legislators because it has been the policy of the government for years to favor the purchase of homes. In short home buyers have already been largely favored in the taxation laws. Thus a man buying a house even before the present emergency, was permitted to deduct the local taxes paid on the house from his income, and also all interest payments on the mortgage, before computing his income tax. This was not of such vital importance when the income tax rates were low. It now becomes very important indeed even to low-income persons.

The proposal to exempt payments on the mortgage as well would have increased this advantage already held by the man buying a home.

What's the Answer?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

TERRIBLE DAYS. History moving so fast that it's blurred beyond our comprehension and, though we lie at the very core of the problem, we're still remote from the action, we Americans. We're bewildered. We're not afraid. We're confident that we and the other Allied nations will come out tops some day. But we can't figure the thing out. It's too big for us . . . too far from our vision of life. We can see that we ourselves have fallen as far short of preparedness as did England, Poland and the Low Countries. But what is the right answer? How should we feel about this whole thing—you and I—as we stand above our dishpans or work at our office files?

There are the questions which lie in all of our hearts today, confusing us all. And they bring to my mind a quotation. It is a remark by J. Krishnamurti. Remember him, the young Hindu who was thought to be by many the reincarnate Christ?

I do not know what has become of him now, but many of the sayings he has left seem to have an almost divine understanding. They have that quality which Christ's own sayings had, of striking deep and straight to the secret questioning of each common soul. The following paragraph, for example, though it was written long before this maddening war began:

"You wish to discover for yourselves," he said, "something that will give you serenity, certainty in life, a purpose, an ecstasy which comes from that purpose, which is really creative energy. You are, in other words, trying to seek Truth. You are as uncertain and as frightened as the wild birds which come to the lakes in these woods. You are not one-pointed, anyone can disturb you. Those who are certain and have already made up their minds are people apart, but of those there are few in the world."

You are seeking Truth. But where can you find truth in all this murk of uncertainty? You want to be fair but how can you know what is fair—how can you be certain?

What's the answer? I don't know it myself. I'm as frightened and confused as you are, and as discouraged. But I can tell you how I'm trying to win through despite my ignorance and bewilderment. I'm clinging hard to those fundamentals of decency which I have found through experience, extend to all human life wherever it may function.

And I'm fighting to protect those standards in my own life and the life of my nation. But even as I cling and fight I am reaching out for more truth . . . for a fuller realization of world life.

I fully believe we Americans are the finest and most successful people on earth. But because of that very success, we are often most ignorant. We rarely bother to understand conditions beyond our own boundaries, or even within them. If we don't like a situation we laugh it off, and take the kids off to a movie. But at last we are up against a situation which cannot be laughed off, which has penetrated even our isolated complacency. We are up against world war.

What do we know about world war, we average Americans? To be brutally honest, we know darn little. We are not a student nation. We like to read detective stories and ga-ga romances . . . or go to the movies . . . or play bridge. But Seeking Honest Information From Expert Authorities is not our national habit. But we'd better make it one. And quick. And there's only one way to relieve our national ignorance and prejudice, READ THE BOOKS OF THE INTELLIGENT COMMENTATORS WHO HAVE BEEN THROUGH THIS WAR SO FAR AND KNOW WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT.

Seeking the truth? You'll never get it by gossiping over the back fence with Mamie or gabbling with the boys in the office. You'll have to dig for it in the places where it's found. And until you do you have no right to an opinion.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, July 17, 1922.

Westinghouse decided to bring subsidiary plant from Brooklyn to Mansfield, for manufacture of safety switches.

Pit on East Fifth street, used by old Mansfield Gas company, was being filled up.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mengert, 191 Home avenue.

Miss Catherine Sheets and Robert J. Crittenden were married by Rev. Victor Newman.

Iron fence was removed from front of Richland Savings bank, preparatory to putting in new front.

It was announced that Pederson company would locate in Mansfield to manufacture umbrellas.

Birthday party was given for little Rolinda Peresman.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On July 17, 1898, General Toral surrendered the city of Santiago and turned over his army as prisoners of war to American General Shafter. Terms of peace between Spain and the United States were signed at Paris in December. By these terms Spain agreed to withdraw from Cuba and to cede Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippine Islands to the United States.

Red Strategy May Trap Invaders, Axis Supply Lines Are Strained

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

BAD as the Russian military position is—and the danger of a Nazi break-through on the southern front is grave—we have here a paradoxical case in which the great gains Hitler is making, coupled with their cost in blood and materiel, are likely to contribute heavily to his undoing, provided the Allies can create a diversion by establishing that second front.

The Nazi leader's success depends upon his ability to smash the Red army in the crucial approaches to the Caucasus in a short time.

The Nazi lines of communication already are badly extended, and the further the invaders drive the more confused will become their already seriously complicated transport problem.

Also the supreme effort Hitler is making for a quick killing is costing so many of his best troops, and wrecking so much equipment, that he cannot indefinitely stand the strain. He will have to slow down and in the not distant future he will be fit game for a smashing Russian counter-offensive.

In short, so long as the Bolshevists can continue their fierce resistance, effecting withdrawals to fresh positions without breaking their line, the territory they abandon may prove to be the trap which will catch Hitler. He has achieved much already, but he has a long, hard road to travel. Stalingrad is close to 200 bloody miles further east; Astrakhan is about double that distance.

THE Nazi chief now is far in advance of the supply lines which he established during the winter, and he is up among the Russian wide-gauge railways over which the narrower gauge German trains couldn't run, even if the roads still were serviceable. But the fuehrer's troubles go back further than that.

Louis Lochner, Associated Press Berlin bureau chief who now is home after five months internment in Germany, disclosed that Hitler allowed the railway transportation of the country to go to pot because he was banking on the great military highways he was building. The highways would have been grand if the fuehrer had won the war overnight as he expected, but he didn't.

Now Hitler's home transport is in a bad way and is rapidly growing worse. Thus he hasn't even proper facilities to start his supplies out of Germany for the front, to say nothing of handling them in Russia.

WE ARE TOLD that Marshal Timoshenko hasn't yet been forced to call on great reserves which are being held for a counter-blow. If the Russians are able to throw fresh troops against Hitler when he is deep in Soviet territory, tired and hampered by disrupted communications, they may be able to inflict a disaster on him. It is reported that this is the strategic line the Muscovites have been pursuing.

The Reds are insisting urgently, however, that to bring about this happy position it is necessary to establish a second front forthwith in western Europe.

There can be little question that this is the right moment to establish the second front, provided it's feasible. That's for the Allied command to say. Lacking this front the ability of the Russians to hold their line and counter-attack must remain in doubt.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — One of the better stories of World War II can't be written in detail now and probably won't be until post-war historians dig into the annals of today's aviation.

It's the story of glider flying.

There are a few announced facts that give some hint of just what is going on.

A little more than a year ago, no Army pilot was allowed to soar around in a sailplane. The reasons are a little obscure. It was too dangerous. It was a fad, a sportsman's hobby, that had no military significance.

THEN came the German invasion of Crete. Now there are 27 Army training stations for glider pilots. There's a new Army rating for men who earn their wings in motorless planes. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has 18 schools where potential glider pilots are given the same kind of training that non-combat flyers get.

In South Carolina, the Marine corps has formed its initial glider group and just recently announced three other glider training centers will be established.

Out at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, the Army is experimenting with a device by which planes in flight can pick gliders off the ground. It works on a principle somewhat similar to the contraption for mail-pouch pickups.

Glider trains already have been proved practical and four-, five- and six-glider trains towed by twin-motored planes are no longer a Jules Verne dream.

Brig.-Gen. Harold L. George, newly appointed head of the ferrying and air transport command, made a special point of the importance of development of glider trains as freighters and passenger carriers of tomorrow.

THE production of gliders is one of our more closely guarded secrets. The few glider plants in operation when the invasion of Crete demonstrated the military importance of motorless planes were not necessarily the potential producers of gliders for war. Army gliders are strictly utilitarian. The sailplanes manufactured for the soaring contests of peacetime were play ships—trim little yachts of the air designed principally for sport. Yet these smaller craft, not much different from the two-or three-place jobs of peacetime, are the training gliders of wartime.

If it is decided to manufacture gliders in great quantity, it would result in no problem comparable to all-out production of planes. There are hundreds of manufacturers—in the furniture industry, for example—who can be called in to bring the mass production of gliders to almost any figure required.

How It Started

"Curiosity Killed a Cat."

Cats are not particularly curious; whence, then, the proverb, "Curiosity killed a cat?"

This seems to be another instance of popularity achieved because of alliterative appeal.

The original saying was, "Care will kill a cat," attributed, among others, to the poets George Wither an Ben Johnson.

This line makes sense, at least, as an observation of the way in which cats, though fussed over, pampered and petted, frequently have all their nine lives curtailed by care.

Suez Canal Menace Continues As Rommel Reorganizes Forces

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

NEWS that Marshal Erwin Rommel's army in Egypt has been reinforced from Crete is coupled with reports from Istanbul that 50,000 German and Italian troops, including three motorized divisions, have been concentrated on that Mediterranean island.

This may presage a renewed Axis drive for the Middle East, timed to coincide with the German smash toward the Caucasus in the Don river region.

Gen, Sir Claude Auchinleck has not been able to take the initiative in Egypt and his operations, which are invariably described as "limited," actually are defensive. His slight gain on the central sector of the Alamein front has been offset by a German advance to the north, near the coast.

In the opinion of Brig. Gen. H. S. Sewell, British military commentator, Rommel has evidently completed the reorganization of his force made necessary by the rapid pace of his advance since the fall of Tobruk. His air strength has been reinforced from Crete and Sicily, and despite incessant attacks by the RAF and by units of the United States Army Air Corps, supplies of ammunition and fresh fighting units must be reaching him.

"The result is that he now appears to be in a position once more to resume the offensive," Gen. Sewell observes. "There is no doubt that the short British line of communication based on Alexandria gives Gen. Auchinleck a great immediate advantage in getting troops up to his line, but Egypt is, after all, only an advanced base which in its turn has got to be filled up from England, the United States, and to some extent from India."

AS THE situation now stands, the British are holding, but the balance of strength is delicate and could be upset by reinforcements to Rommel from Crete unless the British can get considerable reinforcements of their own, which are not at present in sight.

Crete is 180 miles from the Italian base of Derna in Libya and troops can be ferried over by transport planes, while others, with tanks and artillery, can be sent by boat, despite the British naval and air blockade. Thus the menace to the Suez canal is still acute.

A Farmer's Diary

Weather Forecast

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FOR the past two weeks it rained incessantly. All through our valley great winding skeins of windrowed hay became moldy and rotted in the humid air. Then threatening clouds banked heavily in the west and, in a little while, rain poured again.

One farmer west of here mowed a portion of his fine mixed hay each morning until he had remaining only a narrow strip. Three dry, well cured loads were all he harvested from that field.

What wheat remains uncut stands a bulky mass of tangled straw with heads bent near the steaming soil. The binder cuts a clean even swath, but the sheaves are shapeless bundles that no carrier can collect. They lie strung out along the path, awaiting future showers.

Fields of corn, although green and thrifty from excessive rain, are crowded heavily with grass and weeds. Little pools of water stand in all depressions. Some fields south of here have been planted only three weeks and have had no cultivation.

My corn, waist high, has had half the area cultivated since the first fair week of June. Each day I go to that part struggling with ever increasing growth of weeds and grass, I scan the skies hoping for more settled weather, and say audibly to that hard pressed corn —"In a few more days perhaps we can start a second front against so strong an enemy." Wishful thinking, perhaps.

Two weeks ago we planted more than an acre of potatoes, and the same of sudan grass for pasture. That evening a great deluge flooded both cleanly cultivated patches. Four days afterward I waded through the mud, dug below the heavy layer of fertilizer and in several places found three-fourths of the seed had rotted. The sudan grass made no better showing. We planned to seed 1½ acres of cucumbers, on the longest day, June 21. We finished planting on the 8th of July. Four acres of soy beans which I aimed to plant early in June, will not be in for several days to come.

A farmer's best laid plans "gang aft agley, and leave us naught but grief and pain for promised joy."

Yet from such seasons of outward failure, are born the noblest qualities of our rural race. Adversity is a great teacher.

The dark cloud that loomed-threateningly in the west this evening, was framed in a ragged, raveled border of gold and scarlet. Tomorrow we shall have fair weather.

Mansfield Youth's Drawings In Chicago Display.

Included in the annual exhibition of student art opening this week at the American Academy of Art in Chicago is work done by John Wallington, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Wallington, 55 Wellington avenue.

Wallington, who entered the school last fall, has more work displayed than any other first-year student, word from Chicago said. He is studying commercial art, cartooning, and lettering.

The exhibition where his work is being shown is composed of displays of life and figure drawing, advertising and story illustration, art fundamentals, lettering and design, and advertising art. Mediums represented include water colors, oils, pen and ink, dry brush, and others.

METEOR CITY, Ariz. —(AP)— "Meteor City, Population 1" says the sign beside U. S. Highway 66.

The state highway department made it official by putting up the sign.

WOMEN'S GUILD HAS MEETING THURSDAY

"Women of Presbyterian Church In War Activities" Described, Introduced By Mrs. Milo Hieber at Parish House.

WHEN the regular monthly meeting of the First Presbyterian Women's Guild was held Thursday afternoon in the parish house, Mrs. John Angle was in charge of the business session. Devotions were given by Mrs. W. H. Gifford. Mrs. D. N. Roller conducted a short memorial service for Mrs. Franklin Bissman.

Yesterday's program was in charge of Mrs. Milo Hieber, who gave a talk on "Women of the Presbyterian Church in War Activities." Mrs. Hieber introduced the following women as contributors to the war effort: Mrs. Frank Mitchell, sewing group of the church; Mrs. E. M. Eichin, Richland county chairman of surgical dressings; Mrs. J. B. Simons, Richland county chairman of home nursing; Mrs. W. C. Fort, nursing instructor; Mrs. W. J. Bishop, county chairman of Junior Red Cross and first aid instructor.

Mrs. Hieber's introductions continued as follows: Mrs. E. H. Brown, blood donors chairman; Mrs. W. B. Ford, county chairman of the National Nutrition council; Mrs. L. J. Ott, chairman of the women's division of the Richland county staff of bond sales and president of the Garden Center; Miss Elizabeth Hainer, president of the Mansfield Teachers' association on schools and sugar rationing; Mrs. D. O. Meese, president of the League of Women Voters; Mrs. E. F. Malone, mother of boy in the service; Miss Betty Ackerman, applicant for the WAAC; Mrs. H. H. Carter, cookie letters; Mrs. Irl Fisher, chairman of the board of the Y. W. C. A. on the NYA problem; Mrs. Harry Buchan, chairman of Red Cross nurses. Some of the women were in uniform.

The meeting was in charge of Circle Two and was closed with the benediction. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. M. Johnston and Mrs. C. O. Russell at a long table beautifully decorated with a centerpiece of mixed flowers and yellow candles. Mrs. J. F Morey was committee chairman and the hostesses were Mrs. G. A. Lockhart, Mrs. Fannie Colwell, and Mrs. Buchan.

On Aug. 6 there will be a picnic of members of the guild and all the circles and their families. Dinner will be served at 12:30 p. m. in South park.

Shower Honors Mary Perman, Bride-to-Be

Honoring Miss Mary Perman, bride-elect of Joseph Bishop, Miss Ruth Sawyer entertained with a lawn party last evening at her home on Caldwell avenue. Prizes in games were won by Miss Norma Miller, Mrs. James Davis and Miss Shirley Perrine, who gave their awards to the honoree. As each guest presented Miss Perman with a gift, a wish was made at the "wishing well."

Centerpiece for the long table where refreshments were served was a heart-shaped arrangement of flowers in pastel shades. There was a large wedding cake on the table and pastel corsages which were presnted to the guests and the honoree as favors.

Miss Perman and Mr. Bishop will be married in an open service at the Mayflower Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Claytor. Perman, 503 Lida street. The prospective bridegroom is the son of J. J. Bishop, 187 East Third street.

Eighteen members of the Jolly Lot club held a picnic at South park yesterday. Their children were also present. Bingo was played with everyone being the recipient of a prize. Next meeting will be August 20, a steak fry in Middle park for members and families.

PRICE MAY RISE

Long before OPA, and despite increases in materials, prices, and labor costs, manufacturers of bottled carbonated beverages always tried to maintain a five cent ceiling on their products. However, should the proposed tax on soft drinks be enacted, the price of carbonated beverages will rise.

REVENUE DROPS

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A decline in parking meter revenue was reported today by City Treasurer Wyatt L. Millikin who added that last month's "take" was $8,121.95 as compared with $8,449.65 for June of last year.

Haven't I Seen That Suit Some Place Before?

The picture librarian for Wide World Features, who talks to himself, said: "Now whom besides Mary Martin have I seen wearing that swimming suit?" Then he said: "Whom haven't I seen wearing that suit?" That made it easier. And look what he found in the picture files! (But he's going to make four actresses and one beauty queen awful mad!)

Are You Getting A Right Amount Of Nutrition?

It does look easy, doesn't it? Milk, fruits, vegetables, salads and meats. Why, you say, your family gets all those things every single day—and more! And so you forget about it and just take it for granted that you're doing your share in the national nutrition program.

But it isn't easy at all to give our families everything they need every day. Hit or miss just isn't good enough these days when our country needs every one at the very peak of strength and vitality for the big job ahead of us all. So stop taking good nutrition for granted right this minute and make yourself a score card—you'll probably be amazed in find you've been averaging about 70% instead of the 100% you thought seemed so simple!

Making the score card is easy—it can be as plain or as elaborate as you like You can just list the requirements down the left side of a sheet of paper and score yourself accordingly day by day—or you can get the children to do a really artistic job and hang it on the kitchen wall. They'll have great fun doing it—and in keeping score on you for a change, a situation that will help enormously in getting them to eat their vitamins and minerals!

There has been such an emphasis on vitamins and minerals that we must take the greatest care not to neglect another equally important type of food—and that is the "Energy Giving Foods."

Sugar is the finest, most digestible quick energy food we have, so if we list "Dessert" on our score cards and score 100% regularly at each meal we can be sure that our families are getting a fresh store of quick energy and vitality every day.

Sugar as a source of instant energy simply cannot be overemphasized, so don't make the mistake of classing it as a luxury or just a sweetening agent—sugar is an important food.

And above all make out that score card and keep score every day—nutrition is far too important to be left to chance.

JUST DESSERTS

NEW YORK —(AP)— Thereby hangs a moral: don't hoard. A dilemma arose in one Brooklyn home when all the labels came off of the canned food that the housewife had stored up in her basement. She had almost filled one cellar room with cans of baked beans, soups, vegetables, and fruits. One day while she was out the water pipe burst and when she returned the labels were floating all over the basement. There was no way to identify any of them.

Past Presidents of Legion Have Dinner

The Past Presidents' club of the American Legion Auxiliary held a steak dinner at Carmel's restaurant last evening. Hostess for the meeting was Miss Margery Ludwig. President, Mrs. Emma Young, conducted the business meeting, at which time it was voted to do away with the August meeting.

Contest prizes winner was Miss Maude Cunningham. Light refreshments were served by the women of the Ontario church. Next meeting will be Sept. 17, place to be announced.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A surprise birthday party was given by Mrs. Raymond Shelby, Herring avenue, for the sixth birthday of her son, Teddy. Rodney Darling, Kenneth Leitenberger and Dean Ulrey were awarded contest prizes. Other guests were Robert Earl Roth, Bobby Hoffman and Junior Senokozlieff. Refreshments were served the children, the cake being decorated like a merry-go-round.

MEETING OF L'ETUDE CLUB.

Seven members of L'Etude club met with Mrs. Elmer Gottfried, 1328 Springmill street, yesterday. Mrs. Albert Murphy, president, conducted the business meeting. A paper entitled, "Sulfanilimide Drugs," by Morris Markey was given by Mrs. Grohol. Contest prizes winners were Mrs. Howard Frey and Mrs. Richard Uhl. Luncheon was served at the dining room table. Next meeting will be July 30 at the home of Mrs. Grohol, West Fifth street.

THREE-YEAR-OLD HONORED.

Mrs. John E. Holda, 351 Lida avenue, gave a party yesterday honoring the third birthday of her daughter, Delores. Guests were Kenneth Rabel, Jane Keck, Carol Nash, Harold Lee Gnega, David Jordon, Mary Schivinski, Patsy Laeckel, Jerry Thomas, Shirley Young, Donald Casper, John Junior Holda, Kenneth Still, Tommy Chelsky, Rosemary Mellitis, Junior Schivinski, Joyce Freihiet, Michael and John Rohal. Twelve women guests also attended. Victory suckers were given as favors. Refreshment appointments were served in pink and white.

Porch Parties Preferred

There is no limit to the pleasure porch parties afford on hot, summer evenings, especially if you have plenty of refreshing bottled carbonated beverages within easy reach. Surround them with ice in a bucket or pan. Friends can help themselves. You may like to serve a big bowl of popcorn or some sandwiches, too.

New Yorkers Aid War Effort In Various Ways

NEW YORK—Vacation at home no longer holds the prospect of boredom. The increasing number of activities devoted to the war effort are proving a ready outlet for idle hands and free time. In addition to the numerous volunteer agencies serving the Red Cross, U. S. O., and A. W. V. S., the Bundles for America enterprise has revived the old-fashioned sewing circle throughout the country.

Work collected from these sewing centers and recently exhibited at the Waldorf Astoria hotel here surprised the attending spectators with startling new ideas worthy of the most expert talent; although many of the garments were made by amateur home dressmakers or girls of school age. All the articles were made from discarded clothes. One of the prize dresses exhibited was made of unbleached muslin, appliqued with floral printed motifs. One smart-looking woman modeled an afternoon dress she had made of sheer celanese printed draperies. Tailored blouses made of discarded men's shirts with the collar and cuffs removed were bound and collared in a contrasting colored fabric and trimmed with matching buttons.

New Suits for Old.

Out of the fashion pan for fall, the new jumper dress offers the most practical of all mediums for salvaging fabric and combining the new with the old. Fall collections feature the jumper dress for both school and dressy wear. For school, there are the spun fabrics of celanese, the ginghams, the rayon crepes, and the plaids; and for Sunday the velveteens and the taffetas.

Discarded white blouses, men's shirts, old pastel crepe frocks, dimities from damaged kitchen curtains, etc., have been suggested for blouse replacements. New blouses will be teamed with jumpers made from discarded skirts or grownup dresses no longer in service.

Budget Classes.

The virtue of saving and conserving by making over last year's clothes was featured recently by one enterprising woman in New York, who has opened a business devoted to remaking outmoded evening dresses and other apparel.

One of her first triumphs was a hostess gown made from a discarded evening dress of copper colored celanese jersey. The gown, which was too small for the owner, had been slit down center front, and a panel of peacock jersey from another frock inserted from neckline to hem. This was tied together at center front with the blue fabric.

Schools are taking hold of the conservation trend and opening new classes. The Economy Budget classes at the Traphagen School of Fashion for housewives and business women are quite popular, and these classes turn out whole wardrobes made from discarded clothing. The exhibits of this school with its museum background of material are open to the public, and well worth a visit by anyone interested in the study of design, fashion, and the creating of wearing apparel.

Hair Short And Curly Looks Well

By MME. QUI VIVE

Young girls have put their minds on the business of hair growing. It would seem as if they are determined that the shears shall not touch their sacred thatches. The longer the bob, the prettier, apparently. Only the ends need to be permanently so that cuts down on beautifying expenses. If there are rolls atop the piquant face they call for a few curls, but the rest of the hair is left satin smooth. Very pretty it is, too.

The older women are seeking modes that need little arrangement. What with their own duties, and those assumed to help the government, they have no time for primping. They want to look tiptop with the least possible effort. The short cut and the thimble curl fill the bill precisely.

The hair is cut fairly short front and sides, slightly longer at the back, but not more than four inches there. After the permanent all the ends are arranged in pin curls. A few sweeps of the comb and the head is a mass of soft ringlets.

For this mode it is necessary to secure the services of a first class permanent wave operator. Small strands must be taken, every last hair along the nape line included.

The success of a permanent depends almost entirely on the conscientious skill of the operator. The one who hurries, who does not space the strands evenly, who takes too much hair for each rod, is not dependable. The wave will slink out when it should stay strong for months. When taken from the rods, each curl should spring back after being stretched straight. If it hasn't spring it will not have endurance. If you find an operator who works carefully, knows her job and doesn't shirk you have found a treasure. And you'll save money.

There is a keen satisfaction in having a wave that doesn't need a lot of coddling and fussing. If the hair has to be put up on curlers every few nights, it becomes a trial, a real chore when one wants to pile into bed and sleep.

The successful wave means that the setting lotion can be dispensed with unless one desires to flaunt a finger wave. Also, the hair is soft and silky. Even the finest human fur can be given the permanent undulation if the operator is experienced.

For the summer season the short cut is ideal. It looks well with any kind of a hat. It is no trouble to arrange. It is cool. There's a nice fresh feeling when locks are off the neck. No pins are required.

Lonely Man Seeks Girl's Comradeship

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This human document represents the case of the sensitive young man of high ideals who declines to follow the herd and end his lonely days by forcing meetings with girls in the various ways men use."

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I am a young man almost 25 years old. Born and raised in a Southern state, I came here to work for the government. I was placed in a deferred draft class because of a minor defect, so I took the government job to be doing my bit.

"I'm not considered bad-looking and I am well-liked by men of my age. It's hard to tell you my story, but it boils down to this: I'm tremendously lonely, and want a sweetheart. I have parents, relatives, sister and brothers, associates in my work, have my athletics and sports of all kinds but, you see, I've never really known the companionship of a nice girl.

"I went through high school without associating with girls because I was always so bashful. My sister was so much older than I that her friends didn't bother with me. I suppose I was partly to blame for not having any girl friends because I always felt rather bitter toward the practice of forcing meetings with girls in the various ways men use.

"I'm appealing to you in a sort of dazed wonderment. I am thoroughly religious; I believe our Creator wants us all to be happy—and I frankly say to you that I pray to Him each night for happiness and, as a special requisite of same, a sweetheart.

"I wonder if there are many of these lonely people who, day by day, night after night, month after month, and year after year, dream dreams and see nothing but empty shadows.

"Could you, in the book of your experience, find a page or two pointing the way out of this chaos? Possibly I need a whipping, more or less, but I do need a girl and don't know how to go about getting one.

"LONESOME."

I get dozens of letters along these same lines—from boys as well as girls. The greater number comes from young men who want to know the right type of girl—girls they'd like to marry—but who find themselves thwarted by shyness at every turn.

This column is thrown open to readers. If you have surmounted the difficulty of being shy and sensitive, and discovered the art of becoming acquainted with the right type of girl, pass along the glad tidings to some boy who has been less fortunate.

Tell us your experiences, but please do not ask for this young man's name or address.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My first impression about the card was its extremely bad taste; my second, a feeling of gladness that my father was then in the adjoining suite. He had spent as much time there as he could while I was waiting for just such a message as the one which had been brought to me.

With the card in my hand I dashed to the camouflaged door and knocked upon it. He opened it almost instantly.

"The bell boy just brought this up," I said. "The desk telephoned and said a man wished to send it up to me."

He took the card and studied it carefully.

"Pretended cheapness of material and language," he said. "The writer wishes to give the impression of illiteracy."

"I suppose you want me to see this man," I said, feeling a queer, psychic reluctance to grant the interview.

"Yes, and at once," he replied. "If I were alone here I should have you wait until I could summon a younger and stronger man. But Ronald is in the next room, and I fancy he could give a good account of himself anywhere. And you will not need to call us. At the first suspicious sound we shall be with you."

Caller Is a Woman.

"Then," I said, "I shall call the desk and have the man sent up."

But the person I saw when I answered the knock on my door was so different from the person I expected to see that I gaped in astonishment. A tall woman with a bold, hard face, which I instantly disliked, was smiling toothily at me as I opened the door.

My caller was weather-beaten, as are those who live always in the open, and her clothing, well-cut and modish enough, was of the type I always have associated with the unpleasant women who try to impress everybody with their flair for a wilderness life.

Not a Mistake.

"I think there has been a mistake," I said. "I was expecting a Mr. R. Hawes."

"No, there has been no mistake," she said. "I am the person who wished to see you. But I'm afraid you won't forgive my little deception, Mrs. Graham. A friend of mine presented that card, then met me at the lift as if by accident, pretending not to know me, so that I was able to find your room. But I was afraid you wouldn't see me if you guessed who I really am."

"R. Hawes" Is Ruth Hayes.

I had disliked her intensely on sight, and that feeling was not lessening.

"May I ask your name?" I asked icily, "and will you please tell me why you thought I would refuse to see you?"

She laughed as I put the question, and the sound grated.

Then an exceedingly unpleasant memory reared its head from somewhere deep within me, where it had lain for years until I had brought it out into the open when I was talking to Jack.

"Mr. R. Hawes. Urgent. About J. Bickett" had been written on the card.

How blind I had been!

Not "Hawes" but "Hayes" — Ruth Hayes." That was the name of the woman who had written that cruel, inexplicable and insulting letter to Katherine years ago.

Ruth Hayes, sister of Jack's partner in his South American enterprise, the woman both Katharine and I had thought responsible for Jack's long silence and neglect of his wife.

I had learned from Jack's own lips within the week that his feeling for his partner's sister had never been anything but comradeship and gratitude to her for making wilderness life comfortable. That feeling already had changed to aversion, he told me. But it was something far greater than aversion — a terrible, flaming rage — which consumed him when I told him of the letter Ruth had written, baldly asking Katharine to release Jack from his marriage and saying that his love was no longer his wife's but belonged to this stranger, who prided herself upon being a man's woman, at home in the wilderness.

Every Child A Definite Personality

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

THERE IS NO such thing as "just a child," be he three months old or 20 years. He is your child or mine or the child of Mr. and Mrs. Doe.

He is a definite personality with an individuality that has grown since the day of its birth. The child is the sum of all his habits cultivated in the nervous system which he has inherited; under the influence of all things and all persons with whom he comes in contact.

During the first year his habits almost wholly depend upon his mother's habits in relation to him. As he widens his contacts with other children and adults, more factors vie in making him what he becomes.

No Two Alike

Even in the same home no two children, not even twins, have entirely the same environment. This fact is convincingly brought out by Dr. Blanche Weill in her book "Young Children of the Same Family." No mother responds quite the same to any two of her children, no matter how hard she tries to do so nor how nearly she thinks she does. No two children are the same and, therefore, no two inspire the same feelings and behavior.

The child who recites before the teacher is not a mere creature who sits in the third seat, whose name begins with C, and appears as the sixth one in the class register. He is a sacred personality tied by heartstrings to his home.

Shaping Child's Destiny

If a hundred persons were to name the items of contact with the child which shape his destiny, the picture they would give would be as of a grain of sand upon the seaside. How wondrously complex, how past our understanding, are all the countless forces which conspire to make your child or mine the child he is!

When we realize these facts we ought to be not too discouraged when we grow aware of our inability to know our child. Nevertheless, by constant, conscious efforts we can grow in wisdom and in understanding, with the hope that we as parents may become a little better day by day. But let us not look for miracles as we go working on ourselves.

A selected list of books and pamphlets on understanding children may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. Please name some good books to help a parent answer the many questions about sex and the story of life which a growing child asks.

A. Write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, and I shall be glad to send you a selected list of books and pamphlets about these matters. Enclose an addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY AID THE ENEMY

IF YOU let your opponent do his own guessing, instead of giving him positive answers to the questions that asail him, he will make his share of mistakes. Why then, should you help him to know the winning play of a suit, which you can tell is badly bunched against him? If you know something which he does not, why not preserve that advantage and keep him in the dark?

	♠ A 10 4 ♥ 10 9 8 5 ♦ A K J 6 ♣ 6 2

(Dealer West. North-South vulnerable.)

Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

East should have been able to read the trump situation very clearly after West led his club J to the A. South's bidding made it almost certain that South had five or six spades, and that they probably included two of the three honors ranging from J to K, but probably not all three of them. In other words, East should have read that his partner had either three of four trumps headed probably by one of those three honors. If it happened to be three headed by the J, then the declarer could catch them with three leads of high trumps. But if it was four topped by the J, or three headed by the K or Q, then the honor could not be caught except by finessing.

East's mind went through no such figuring, however. Seeing that the declarer might be planning to ruff a club in dummy, he decided to lead a trump, his singleton. South put on the 8, and no matter what West did, his chance for a trump trick was gone. So the defenders managed to get only two tricks, the club and heart aces.

Any other return would have compelled South to guess how to play the trumps, and the chances were heavy he would have taken three top cards, setting up the J for West, and preventing the extra trick.

After West opens this deal with 1-Diamond and North passes, what should East do and why?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, July 18.

A very active and profitable day in which much may be accomplished by strict attention to affairs in hand, with the exercise of skill, initiative and the application of unusual brilliance and cleverness to what might be called "knotty problems." These have the element of subtlety, intrigue or undercover tactics or strategies, which must be met with equal shrewdness and resources. Elders and superiors may assist in this, while reason, good judgment and stability also contribute to progress.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a lively day in which large issues are to be developed by ingenuity, skill, enterprise, original resources and keen mental insight and cleverness. Sound reasoning, quick strategies, with patience and endurance will circumvent duplicities. A similar condition figures in private relations, although important persons or superiors are ready with encouragement and real support.

A child born on this day should have much intellectual ability, good judgment, reasoning faculties, which it will need to circumvent treachery and jealousy.

NAVY OFFICER ARRIVES TO COMPLETE AVIATION PROGRAM

Final arrangements for the public mass meeting in celebration of Naval Aviation night, to be held Monday evening in the auditorium of John Simpson Junior high school, were being made today by Lieut. Rowland E. Wilson, member of the naval aviation cadet selection board, who has arrived from Columbus.

June graduates of high schools in the Mansfield area will hear Lieut. John Crawford of the aviation board tell how naval fliers are taught all the skills demanded in modern air warfare.

Lieut. Wilson said that arrangements have been made to have a parade to the auditorium led by the McVey Post, American Legion, drum corps. The Legion post is cosponsoring the program along with the Mansfield squadron of the Civil Air Patrol.

One of the highlights of the meeting will be the swearing into service of 13 young men from Mansfield and surrounding cities as naval aviation cadets.

High school graduates attending the meeting will also see a navy movie, "Sailors with Wings."

The public celebration Monday night will open a three-day stay in Mansfield for the traveling naval flight examining board from Columbus. The board will set up temporary headquarters here to give physical and flight aptitude tests to applicants from Richland, Morrow, Knox, Ashland and Crawford counties.

FILE PROTESTS ON PAVING JOB

Ashland Road Home Owners Claim Highway Condition Needs No Improvement.

Several Ashland road property owners have filed with Mansfield city council a protest against assessments to be levied as their share of the cost of reconstruction of portions within the city of U. S. Routes 42 and 42-A.

Bid of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company of $67,500 for the entire project is under consideration of the state highway department which will supervise the job.

The city will assume a $24,500 share of the cost, assessing $10,000 against all the private properties involved. The state will pay the balance.

Basing their objections on the claim that the present Ashland road pavement is in good condition, the protestants cite that the assessments of 15 years ago should not now be duplicated or increased.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — It's funny the things the movies can find when they're put to it. China, for instance, and right on the back lot.

It's up a hill, 'way back somewhere in those 265 acres at Universal — parts of which, so the legend goes, have never been explored by white men before.

Coons

This particular hilltop now is a busy community, for three reasons, or four if you count the main one, to wit: Deanna Durbin's new picture, "Forever Yours," is set in China before it moves on to San Francisco. That meant (1) Producer Bruce Manning and Director Jean Renoir needed a plot of China's good earth, (2) they preferred it close at hand—to save tires and transportation, (3) they had to decorate it with that $5,000 set budget (for new materials) in mind.

An early day movie-maker, faced with the prospect of a distant location, once gained immortality—though I can't remember his name and it isn't Goldwyn—by decreeing: "A rock's a rock and a tree's a tree—we'll shoot it in Griffith Park."

The movies haven't come to that yet. "Forever Yours" has the benefit of Madame Rosalydne Chang's technical advice. Madame Chang, wife of the Chinese diplomat, looked over the back lot and said this was it—as good a duplication of southern China's Yunnon province sa a camera could ask.

Movie artisans went to work and now, reached by the U's own tortuous Burma road, there stands a walled Chinese mission of seven buildings. Constructed, they say, of 90 per cent fragments from old sets and 10 per cent new stuff.

Six days a week Deanna, surrounded by a colony of Los Angeles' most authentic Chinese, works up there. She's the girl on the hill, and she likes it. Very restful, she says. But when you come up from civilization, right off she wants to know the latest war news. She talks about planes and battleships and carriers as easily as she takes a high-C.

She says they're working on the script of her next picture, "Three Smart Girls Join Up," but she still doesn't know much about the script of "Forever Yours." She knows the story until it hits San Francisco—that's after the Japs have bombed her peaceful mission and she's met Flying Tiger Edmund O'Brien and escaped to the U. S. with a whole passel of refugee children she pases off as her own.

"After we get to San Francisco," she says, "anything can happen."

But she isn't worried. She's made too many hit pictures with Bruce Manning to fret about a little thing like what happens next.

COUNTY'S BANKS GET SET TO SELL BIG WAR BONDS

They'll Emphasize Importance of Larger Denominations; Committee Organized.

Bankers in Mansfield and Richland county were organizing today under the title of the Richland Victory Fund committee to launch a new campaign to sell Series F and G war savings bonds—those of denominations from $5,000 up to $100,000.

C. F. Ackerman, president, and H. G. Brunner, vice president, of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, were named co-chairmen of the victory fund committee at a meeting of county bankers yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. They were appointed by John C. McHannan, Cleveland of Area 1 which includes Richland and 27 other counties in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Representatives of 11 banks in the city and county attended the meeting and heard campaign plans outlined by McHannan and A. C. Hoffmeier, Cleveland, secretary of the campaign committee in Area 1.

Brunner said today that members of a Richland county committee will be named within a few days. It will include representatives of all the banks, savings and loan companies, insurance firms, industries, agriculture, and chambers of commerce. Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the county war savings bond committee, will be a member.

Brunner said he had asked each of the county banks to submit the names of prospective committee members, persons who are active and well-known in their communities.

Purpose of the campaign, which will be independent of other campaigns to sell bonds, will be to educate the public that victory for the Allies in the war depends upon the use of every possible dollar to buy bonds and that the larger bonds add up much faster than small ones, Brunner said.

Campaigns now under way place more emphasis upon the purchase of war stamps and $25 and $50 bonds than the large bonds which can be purchased with savings and as a safe investment, he pointed out.

SEEKS RECRUITS

Seeburger Issues Call For More Auxiliary Firemen.

Recruits are wanted for Mansfield's auxiliary fire department which meets at 7:30 p. m. Friday in instruction session at the foot of North Walnut street.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and a crew of city firemen will demonstrate the use and handling of ladders, hose and other equipment to the wartime volunteer fire fighters.

At last week's initial drill about 75 volunteers were present.

"Probably last week' s audience of 200 or more will join up tonight," was Chief Seeburger's hopeful comment.

A volunteer force of 150 or more is desired for instruction in combating fires originating from war or other causes, the Chief declared.

RAPS BRICKER

Ferguson Calls Him Ohio's 'Most Extravagant Governor.'

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, stumping the state for the Democratic nomination for governor, declared today that his only fight was with Gov. John W. Bricker, "the most extravagant governor the state ever had."

He said that Bricker, in his first three years in office, spent $125,000,000, "much more than Davey spent and he was known as a spender." Bricker has "rolled up a big surplus" and has been withholding "the just share" from city and county governments, he added.

TRANSFER TO CINCINNATI

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The seventh constitutional convention of the United Mine Workers has been transferred from Atlantic City to Cincinnati to conserve transportation. Approximately 6,000 delegates are expected to attend the sessions Oct. 6.

BOY SLAYER FOUND INSANE

Youth Who Killed Step-Father Smiles at Report He's Probably Incurable.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Richard Steadman Thompson, 16-year-old high school honor student who killed his professor stepfather "to keep him from turning my mother against me," may have to spend the remainder of his life in a state hospital for the insane.

The youth, whose intelligence quotient was the highest ever recorded at Grandview high school, sat calmly yesterday and heard Probate Judge C. P. McClelland pronounce him "mentally ill and unfit to be at large."

A paunchy, "bookish" boy with a penchant for poetry and philosophy, he admitted shooting to death Dr. Charles R. Owens, a chemical engineering instructor at Ohio State university. Owens was found dying in his university office on June 11.

The youth half smiled as he heard two psychiatrists tell the court that he was a victim of schizophrenia—split personality—and that hope of curing him was "beyond the bounds of probability."

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Free Owens, wept when Judge McClelland declared that "for his own benefit and that of society" Thompson must be confined to a state hospital.

McClelland postponed until Monday actual commitment of Thompson to decide whether he should be sent to the Lima state hospital for the criminal insane or the Columbus state hospital.

GRATITUDE!

Good Samaritan Discovers Her Kindness Is Unappreciated.

Good Samaritan stunts are the bunk sometimes, opined Mrs. Blanche Williams, 110 West Fourth street, who turned over to Mansfield police Thursday evening a billfold belonging to a Galion man.

Mrs. Williams explained that she had driven the man—who she said was suffering from "bottleneck" indulgence—to Galion where he accused her of removing his purse from his pocket. On her return to Mansfield she found the billfold on the floor of her car, she told police.

Galion authorities were asked to notify its owner he could regain his property here after paying telephone toll charges.

Mrs. Esther Cutter, 67, died early today at her home, 92 West Second street, after a several weeks' illness.

She was the widow of William Cutter, caretaker at the Mansfield postoffice for a number of years. One son, William Cutter of the Republic Steel company in Youngstown survives.

The body was removed to the Finefrock Funeral home. Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of the son from Youngstown.

Laff-a-Day

"As long as you're going to your mother's for something to eat, could you bring me back something, too?"

War changes a lot of things. Before the United States entered the war, the city enforced an ordinance forbidding the use of any sound truck in the city. The enforcement broke down a few months ago when music from a sound truck was substituted for a band at one of the send-off for draftees. Mansfielders downtown today heard a sound truck throughout the day urging them to take part in the American Heroes day war bond and stamp sales compaign.

The Mansfield postoffice has been called upon to play a good many roles but not until today has it been requested to be an advice-to-the-lovelorn department. Postmaster Herman E. Homberger received a letter from a young lady in the south telling him of the proposal of marriage she had received from a former Mansfielder now in the armed service. She said she didn't want to say "yes" until she knew more about the young officer, so she wrote to the postmaster in quest of the information. The postmaster said postal regulations forbid his compliance with the request, but that he expected to notify her he didn't know the young man anyway.

A Lucas poultry farmer who said he believed he could solve the theft of 200 chickens from his poultry house without the help of officers, came to Sheriff Frank E. Robinson today and admitted he would need some help. The chickens were stolen the night of July 5 and Arthur Smith, the owner, said he had watched for the thieves and checked clues almost nightly since then. The sheriff told him, as he tells everyone who loses property, that the chances of catching the thieves are always much better if the theft or burglary is reported immediately.

RESTRICTS MINISTER'S MOVEMENTS

Action Follows Order For Closing of Consulates In Both Countries.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States, in addition to cancelling consular representation with Finland, has restricted further the movements of Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope and his staff, it was learned today.

Procope has been advised that he and members of his legation must obtain permission from the state department to travel in the United States.

That action emphasized the formal announcement last night by the state department that all American consular activities in Finland would be suspended and the order to Finland to close its 14 consulates in this country by Aug. 1. After months of cautious handling of relations with Finland, the only nation to pay its World war debt installments on time and in full, the United States took its strongest step thus far in expressing sharp disapproval of Finland's subservance to Axis pressure.

Great Britain has declared war upon Finland. But the United States, even though it declared war upon Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary, has refrained from breaking with Finland.

The cancellation of the consular representation, reminiscent of the expulsion of Italian and German consular officials months before going to war with those countries, holds grave implications for the future of relations with Finland.

Finnish sources have asserted that Finland is not becoming an active ally of Germany against the United States but developments have not always borne out those assertions.

The United States yesterday sent Finland a note saying that "in denying American consular officers presently in Finland their treaty rights in connection with the representation of American interests in Finland, the Finnish government had undermined the basis upon which American consular representation was maintained in Finland."

Finns 'Surprised' At U. S. Action

HELSINKI — (AP) — An official statement issued through the Finnish news bureau today said the Washington decision to close the American consulate here and to request closing of Finnish consulates in the United States was "a surprise" to the Finnish government, which "had no reason to suppose" that its policy could lead to such an action.

'Knickerbocker,' Society Reporter, Dies In New York

NEW YORK —(INS)— Maury H. B. Paul, who daily covered the social activities of New York and the nation under the name of "Cholly Knickerbocker" died at his Manhattan apartment early today. He was 52.

His column appeared in newspapers throughout the nation. Death was attributed to a heart ailment.

A native of Philadelphia, he was survived by his mother, Mrs. Eleanor V. Paul.

"Paul's body will be placed in a crypt at St. Bartholomew's church tomorrow afternoon and funeral services will be conducted at that edifice just off Fifth avenue on East 50th street at noon on Monday. Burial is expected to be in Florida.

One of the most prominent society writers in the country, Paul under the pen name "Cholly Knickerbocker" for years chronicled the activities of the world's bluebloods. His friends in international society circles were countless and daily he scored "beats" on what the socialites were doing.

BACK SIVERLING, LONG AND BEER

Colored Democratic Group Deadlocks Over Governor Choice.

Members of the Richland County Colored Democratic club endorsed candidates seeking nominations for county commissioner, 17th district congressman and 17th district central committeeman at a meeting at 248 North Diamond street last night but were unable to reach a decision on a choice for governor.

Club members approved E. P. Long, former sheriff, for nomination as county commissioner; Charles Beer of Ashland for district central committeeman; and A. Ross Siverling, Ashland county prosecutor, as 17th district congressional candidate.

The meeting deadlocked over the approval of a gubernatorial candidate and decided to meet next Thursday at the same place to continue debate on the question.

CHAPTER IV

He sat, his knees weakened. Morley had written:

"Two days away from you now on this stupid trip. The days have clogged my brain and choked my throat. My heart's ashes. Witch of the wood. I want to go hand in hand again with you in your magic wonderland. When I called, your voice sounded like a little bell in the telephone's throat. Beating like that blue vein in your right hand. Remember when I told you that your arms were like a necklace, holding your body like a huge jewel close to me in love and sleep."

Others were as ardent. One mentioned Oliver. ". . . As long as my devoted Oliver is near you, I know you are well guarded."

"She still loves Morley!" Gordon said to himself. "She keeps his letters! No doubt re-reads them often. She wants him, not me! It's evident that she married me while she was desperately unhappy without him. I'm madly in love with her. No other woman can ever mean anything important to me. There is one woman for a man. Audrey's mine. She's the one I want to work for, to live for, to dream for. It's her kiss I want on my lips as I go ahead trying to find a better and fuller place in life. I hoped that some day she would know me."

Gordon swallowed. His throat was dry. The rest of the letters were the same. Hurriedly he tied them, flung them into the desk, snapped shut the drawer and hastened to his own room. He had heard footsteps.

Gordon plugged at his typewriter keys, listening apprehensively to the approaching footsteps. He tensed when someone knocked at his study door. It was Oliver. "Can I be of any service, Mr. Blake?" the butler asked sharply.

"No, I'm quite all right," answered Gordon. He closed the door and breathed deeply and easily. It had been a narrow squeeze. He knew now he would have hated the icy Oliver to have caught him filching the letters red-handed from Audrey's ivory dressing-table.

But the quiet disappearance of Oliver to the lower floor of the house was no signal for joy. The memory of Morley's letters to Audrey, which he had just read, made him miserable through the afternoon.

The moments crawled. The sun was dropping behind the horizon when he heard Audrey's blue roadster grinding up the limestone drive. He drew back the heavy golden draperies to watch her. She was carrying a large rectangular package covered with manila wrapping paper.

He brushed his hair, slipped into a jacket, studied himself in the mirror, wondering whether his face showed a hint of the secret he knew—that Morley's love letters were still in her possession and kept hidden. His face was tense and dark. The scar over his left eye had whitened as it always did in anger, but his face was otherwise forcedly expressionless. He went down stairs and stood quietly in the lavish drawing room, watching her.

Audrey unwrapped the package carefully. It was the portrait of Morley. She rested the bottom of it on the gleaming side table and studied it thoughtfully, then looked at the back of it where it had been repaired. Gordon came closer; suddenly he put his arms around her.

She recoiled, muttering, "Oh, you, Gordon. Don't frighten me so!" He raised her chin. She lifted her coral pink lips to his—obligingly — meanwhile holding the portrait in both hands.

"I miss your arms around me," he said.

"O, you silly boy. Do you want me to drop this picture?"

"If it's a choice—you know my answer." It was a danger spot in the conversation. She avoided it as though skating around a patch of thin ice at Lake Placid. She explained how the artist who painted it had repaired it. He'd done a good job on it too, by arranging the strips of torn canvas first, and then pasting them with a resilient glue to fresh strong strips of paper, and then backing them with more glue and parchment.

Gordon reminded her that she had ridden more than two hundred miles. She said she was enthusiastic about the whole job, and didn't mind the time and the rides to get it.

* * *

When Gordon reminded Audrey of the time she had spent, she flared, "But of course, it's not a silly canvas you can pick up in Greenwich Village for a dollar—it has personality!"

"So did he?" asked Gordon.

"Certainly," she answered, sitting deeper in the sailcloth-covered sofa. "Color too!" She sat admiring the portrait which she had rehung in its original spot above the black Regency mantel. "I'd hardly have fallen madly in love with anyone commonplace. Don't you like it?" she inquired.

"No! I don't want to offend you—but you asked me for a true answer. That's it. It seems to get in my way. It asks for too much attention."

"Not from you," she returned in a harder voice.

He explained haltingly then that the canvas portrait was like a thin partition—a film between them that ought not be there. Audrey resented that. He went on to say that he had felt that, especially in the last few days—a sudden cooling of her love for him—a cooling probably produced by the unseen presence of the glint-eyed man on canvas. And he told her that he would like to replace the portrait for her with a land or seascape.

This suggestion met with a blunt refusal. Gordon answered that he hadn't known there was an old memory in the family closet.

That bit, and drew bad blood. From that point on it was criticize and answer, taunt and bluster. Gordon was ready for the tiff, and felt that he'd see it all the way through.

He felt he'd just as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb. But deeper down within his spirit it was no lust for blood that drove him on, only the sad realization that the shadow of Morley had lengthened between him and Audrey—a shadow that was darkening their love.

"Me thinketh the lady doth protest too much," gibed Gordon. "You spring to this fellow's defense much too quickly. When I came here you hadn't told be anything about him. Remember that after a divorce, an ex-husband dies completely."

"Does he?"

"Of course. You don't know that I am being reminded of Morley in a thousand subversive ways; Morley's chestnut horse and the hound who almost chewed me—the initialed bath and bedroom accoutrements; his books, his radio; the evanescent, lingering presence of the man, clings to everything like an unpleasant perfume. All right, I'm jealous. I admit it. I want to clean house, clean out anything that would aid in the remembrance of him."

Audrey's defense of Morley had just started. It rubbed Gordon the wrong way. Now she began by praising him, his family and his early years at fashionable Bar Harbor and Sutton Place. Audrey went on about Morley at St. Paul's and Amherst and Harvard. He was a Phi Beta Kappa man. How Morley had hazed the frosh. How Cliff's gang had wrecked the Cap and Pudding club's annual show—how Morley had been voted "most likely to succeed after graduation."

"And did he succeed?" asked Gordon, grinding out a cigaret.

"Yes," she answered slowly. "Yes, I believe he did."

"Believe? How?" Gordon kept her warm with his grilling. He wanted the truth, and didn't care how he got it. He wanted to have from her lips exactly what she still thought of Morley. Gordon wanted to lay the ghost. He wanted her subconscious self to talk: a subconscious self that, Gordon suspected, still loved the man she had divorced. Gordon wanted to probe, to discover the truth and carve out of her heart the whole memory of Morley that still lurked in her like germs of a fever. He wanted all of her, not just what she was offering him.

And the fever began to show in her face. Gordon hoped fervently he could make Audrey show him a hundred faults of her former husband that he could destroy with contempt.

She told him how she had met Morley at a dance at Spring Lake, New Jersey. She went on reminiscently, "He was like a dark dream that night—in his evening clothes, and a cloak. Did you ever wear a cloak?"

"No. Why should I?" Gordon snapped. "But I know somebody who does. He has a pale face and heavy, red lips and he stands, smiling under a tree of poisonous apples."

"Clifford has a fascinating smile."

"Well, I haven't. Nor a Phi Beta Kappa pin, nor a cap. I never owned a good pair of trousers until I earned enough money to buy a pair. Mine were always patched when I was a kid. And I never had summers off to swim at Spring Lake."

"How unfortunate," she sighed mockingly. "If you swim as well as Clifford did."

"Lord, don't be like that, Audrey! It's the first time I heard it in you."

"I guess you're right. But you started it, I'm sorry. I need something to do. Then I wouldn't be flying from Bermuda to Bar Hampton and Sulphur Springs. I've been so upset since I divorced Clifford—don't know whether I want to come or go. Please understand."

She paced the room nervously—stared out toward the Sound, grew quieter. He asked her to continue, and she did, as if she were very happy to talk. She talked, still looking out the French window, her voice low, remembering as if her spirit had escaped the four walls of the room and was side by side with Morley amid the palm fronds and music of that first night they met.

Gordon felt it—that she was moving farther away from him then than ever before. He felt that she wanted to talk and was enjoying her escape.

Morley had fascinated her. She told Gordon how her own escort was ditched and she huddled with Morley, sat until dawn, in a leathern corner seat of a Red Bank tavern, sipping brandy.

"He was awfully clever and quick with his tongue," she reminisced, "sometimes it dripped with honey—other times it cut like a knife. Every time I was with him I hung between exaltation and depression!"

"Do you remember any of the things he said to you that night?"

"Why, of course, everything."

"But you were awfully young," Gordon suggested.

"Of course I was," she flared. "But it wasn't a silly infatuation. I adored him!"

"I see. Well, let me tell you the rest of your romance. You had a basketful of meetings after that. And he drove his car with the top down, and a silk muffler flopping in the breeze. Then you bless the water with your presence at Bar Harbor or the Southampton Bathing club, when all the time you wished he might take you to Coney Island. He'd lean over close and lift his left eyelid knowingly, and his voice would be as intimate as the rustle of silk sheets."

"Gordon, stop it. Stop it, I tell you. If there's any talking to be done about him, I'll do it."

"I know his type. He's not unique. Only you thought he was, didn't you? You've too much sentimentality, my dear!"

* * *

That stung. She was facing him stiffly, desperately, cheeks taut, lips in a thin line, almost trembling. They stared at each other a minute, silently, then Gordon added slowly, "Then he'd take you to dinner; probably Lesterson's on the Jericho pike, maybe a ballet or a musical, with a drink later at some gilded sewer in New York where the doorman gave you a special greeting as you floated in wearing his tawny orchids."

"Don't stare at me so," she said in a high, thin voice. "Yes, you're right. Only there was more. Now that you've started it, you'll hear the end of it."

She told him the rest.

Morley had been no poor upstart like he was. He had been a pin in the silk shirt of New York cafe society. He owned a gold mine somewhere in Colorado, and spent money like water. She recalled a night, how she had said she loved to rhumba; how the silly college boys circled the dark floor watching the two of them. Yes, Audrey had liked that.

Then she told Gordon about the night Morley asked her to marry him. He had leaned forward. She had felt something new coming; he seldom did that, usually sat straight without leaning his back against the back of his chair. With garlands of words he reviewed for her their nights together. He spoke about cocktails . . . the white dewy gardenias. The clip, clop, clop of lazy horses through Central Park moonlight.

"It must be like this always. Will you marry me, my sweet? Could you manage to say: 'I love you' and mean it?"

She could and did. She knew she was madly in love with him. She answered him that love was in the heart and soul of her.

"You gave him the response any girl out of high school would have given. The whole story is mere routine. He knew you'd answer that way," Gordon shot back at her, fury burning each word.

More of the story unfolded. There had been the ride up a long and beautiful slow Hudson river, then east through parkways to a little country town with stone walls and white wooden houses.

"Greenwich?" asked Gordon.

"Yes, Greenwich," she smiled in reminiscence. "The traffic cop was our witness."

* * *

She recalled for Gordon how Cliff would speak to her at morning, tend her at lunch, on the beach, and at night tell her that she was his jewel.

She was standing now as she said this, skin flushed, hair sparkling.

Gordon said. "All that attention, and a gold mine too. It sounds fishy somewhere. How'd he get the mine? Win it at a bingo party?"

"He inherited it from his first wife," answered Audrey.

Gordon leaned forward, breathing a sibilant "So-o-o" through his clenched teeth. "You never told me that you were his second catch!"

"There was no reason to. That I happened to have Morley didn't make any difference in his love for me," she declared defiantly.

"Then if he was so wonderful," Gordon shot at her, "why did you divorce him?"

Audrey turned sidewise on the soft—waited a moment, then added, in a lower voice, "There was a woman who came between us. He was a friend of hers before he met me—and she wouldn't let go of him."

KOMROFF'S NEW BOOK ADDED TO LIBRARY LIST

Author Re-creates Time In Which Jesus Lived In Vital Narrative.

Manuel Komroff's new book, "In the Year Of Our Lord," is a reminder that the New Testament story is ever-fresh to the spirit of men.

In his re-creation of the times in which Jesus lived, the author tells a narrative which is wholly in keeping with the spirit and mood of the Gospel version, and, though much of it is necessarily invention, nothing is included which is contrary to New Testament belief.

The Mansfield Public Library includes Komroff's title among its new collection.

Other new books include:

THE SEA-GULL CRY by Robert Nathan, the story of Louisa and her small brother, Jeri, who came across the water from their broken homeland to live on Cape Cod. There they found their first American friends — though it wasn't until later that Jeri discovered "Smith." How Jeri found him and how Louisa brought peace and love to the memory-haunted man—Nathan tells with tenderness and beauty.

THE BOY FROM MAINE by Katharine Brush, the love story of a man, who came from the lobster pots of Maine to success in New York and radio—and a woman, born to the luxury of Beacon street, who found her happiness through failure. It is a human and glamorous tale—covering the generation from war to war—through the lives of two persons.

Other Fiction:

THE COMMANDOS—Arnold.

HAUNTED LADY—Rinehart.

ASSIGNMENT IN GUIANA — Coxe.

Non-Fiction.

WEST WITH THE NIGHT by Beryl Markman is an exciting autobiography combining the exhilaration of flight with a native's love for the dark heart of Africa. Miss Markman learned to shoot and hunt with the natives—raced her horses, ran the farm in her father's absence—and learned to fly. The first woman mail pilot in the world, she flew over the jungle and the desert—to Cairo, Salum, Benghazi, Tobruk—with her flight over the Atlantic as a climax.

DAWN OF VICTORY by Louis Fischer, author of "Men and Politics," is another thoughtful and highly important contribution to books about the war in Europe. With his background of European and Russian experiences, Mr. Fischer is able to throw new light on the warring democracies—and he not only surveys the outstanding events of the past two years, but looks into the future as well.

When Karsten Ohnstad was 16 his vision began to fade and today at 29 he is totally blind. THE WORLD AT MY FINGER TIPS is a fresh, entertaining personal narrative of his years of adjustment to a world of darkness, and it is filled with his determination to overcome the tragedy of the blind, not be an object of pity or of charity, and not to be shut off from the sighted world.

COMICS AND THEIR CREATORS by Martin Sheridan tells the story of the man behind the comic strips from Orphan Annie to Superman—how they started their characters and what they are like themselves. The book is profusely illustrated with comic strips, cartoons and pictures of the artists.

MEAT
and this summer of '42

From the Arctic Circle to the Equator, and here at home—summer or winter—Uncle Sam's armed forces get balanced nutrition the year round, with meat in liberal amounts.

Authorities in charge of feeding these men know that the human body is the same machine summer and winter and needs the same proteins, B vitamins and minerals regardless of season, temperature or climate.

Hot meat without "watchful waiting"—the delicious and thrifty pot roast is a summer stand-by. Cook it early in the day—warm it up at dinnertime. Stews, too, can be prepared in advance and are even better when "warmed up".

One of the things your government asks of you this summer is to make yourself stronger and more efficient through better nutrition.

Meat, vegetables, fruits, dairy products and cereal foods—all are needed for good nutrition, in summer as in winter. The rays of the summer sun will give you more vitamin D—but will not compensate for an otherwise unbalanced or insufficient diet.

This summer particularly remember that meat, which is an all-year-round eating favorite, contains these all-year-round nutritional essentials: complete, high quality proteins, B vitamins and minerals (iron, copper, phosphorus).

COURT CLOSES $153,071 WAGE AND FEE SUIT

Accepts Payment of $5,919 In Back Pay and 'Reasonable' Sum to Attorney.

Payment of $5,919 for overtime work and liquidated damages to 70 employes of the Richland Shale Brick company as ordered by the federal wage-hour division was accepted today by Judge D. A. Cook of Lorain county in settlement of a case involving an action for $153,071, against the firm. Judge Cook heard the case in Richland county common pleas court.

The court entry which, in substance approved an answer filed by the defendant company, was the first to be filed in a series of similar actions started by Attorney H. M. Rust of Mansfield.

The entry said Rust had received "suitable amount" as counsel fees from the Richland Shale Brick company, but the amount was not revealed. He sought $51,000 in fees, or $1,500 for each of the 34 plaintiffs, in the action against the firm.

In its answer to Rust's suit, the defendant stated that its records had been checked by the wage-hour division which had ordered $5,919 paid to 70 employes in amounts ranging from 75 cents to $477 per worker.

The firm complied with the order and had tried to meet the government regulations as they applied to over-time pay due employes, the answer said.

Judge Cook found the money had been paid and the firm had not purposely violated any of the federal wage-hour regulations, the entry stated.

Lumbermens Honors Its Service Men

The seven men of Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company now serving with the colors were honored "for their sacrifice to preserve the ideals of a free people" yesterday when the ex-service men of the organization dedicated a service flag containing seven stars at a special ceremony held at 11 a. m. on the grounds at the home office. More than 100 employes participated in the dedication by singing "The Star Spangled Banner" after the program opened with "To the Colors." E. Ray Jenkins placed the flag in the custody of Charles H. Keating, president of the company. Keating responded by saying, "It is the sincere hope of everyone present that these men shall all return safely to us." He also added that every man who had left the company to serve with the armed forces had been given a month's salary and that his position with the company would be retained for him until his return. Men honored in the ceremony were Capt. Charles T. Campbell, Lieut. W. R. Cutter, and Privates Charles T. Carl, R. B. Davis, R. H. Finical, C. M. Persinger, and J. W. Summerville.

COUNTY NEARING COMPLETION OF ROAD PROGRAM

Curtailed Improvement Work Done in All Townships But Two, Says Sword.

Richland county's summer road program, cut in half by wartime restrictions and priorities, is nearing completion, County Engineer Howard Sword said today.

County road workers finished the summer projects in Madison township yesterday and were ready to start today in Weller township where Sword estimated it will require two days to complete the work.

In about two weeks, workmen will move into Plymouth township to do a grading project requiring about five days, the engineer said. The Plymouth job will be the last on the summer program which usually runs until nearly the first of December, Sword added.

The county surface-treated 20½ miles of roads in nine of the county's 18 townships this season at a cost of $11,155. Road grading in 10 townships is being done at a cost of $7,000, far below the usual amount spent for such work during a summer.

Less than five miles of new road was built this season, but Sword said the reduced mileage of new construction is due partly to the fact that the county has replaced most of its earth roads with gravel or hard-surfaced materials. Only 73 miles of dirt roads remain in the entire county and most of them are in sparsely settled areas, according to Sword.

The new construction includes two miles in Jefferson township, one mile in Weller township, a half mile each in Plymouth and Butler townships, and six-tenths of a mile in Worthington township.

Sword said counties and townships this year had to prove that their proposed road projects were essential to the nation's war effort before they could obtain priority ratings on materials.

It's the same with the Colonel, too...

To Private Willie Gillis, Jr., who hasn't issued a command (yet) and who is very good at peeling apples, the Home Town Newspaper is a welcome package, indeed.

Willie's Colonel, who hasn't peeled apples for a long time (if ever) and who is very good at issuing commands, comes from another town. But it's just as hard for him to get along without the news . . . especially the news from home.

It's the same with the Captains and the Majors and the Generals. And with Ensigns and Admirals, too.

It's the same with people on the home front. With Bankers and Clerks, Clergymen and Machinists, Teachers and Students, Housewives and Business Women . . . and Workers in the War Plants.

It's the same with you and me.

No matter who we are or where we are or what we do, we all have one thing in common: we want the newspaper . . . because we want the news.

* * *

Today, when so much is happening so quickly, this constant hunger for the news, this universal need for the newspaper is stronger than ever.

We need newspapers today not only for the news they bring, but for the guidance they give us; for the advice, instruction and information . . . in the ads as well as the news columns . . . which help us adjust our lives to these critical and constantly changing days.

We need newspapers to be well-informed. And a nation that is well-informed is a more secure nation, a better prepared nation, a more democratic nation . . . a nation more sure of progress and Victory.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

In contrast to all too many sportless week-ends this summer for Mansfield diamond fans, the three-day period coming up offers plenty of entertainment for the bleacherites.

Starting this evening at the Fairground, the program opens up with the first twilight baseball game of the season as the Mansfield Travelers meet the Galion Jaycees of the Ohio State Semi-pro baseball league.

I wouldn't know how many Mansfielders will be occupying "alumni row" in the stands at Ohio State Reformatory tomorrow afternoon, but those who do will see the Travelers again in action against Coach George Allerding's O. S. R. club.

* * *

Then comes Sunday and the biggest softball day of the season, with the Mansfield All-Stars tangling with the state champion Toledo Old Dutch Beers at 2:30 at Liberty park, and the state champion Mansfield Provident Loan girls meeting Cuyahoga Falls at 4 o'clock at North Lake park.

And the Travelers won't be entirely out of the Sunday picture, taking the road to Mt. Vernon and a game with the Shellmar Products club.

Beat it out, and jump and jive, all,
Mansfield has a sports revival.
Yeah man.

* * *

Here this department has been crying all summer about the lack of sports, and moaning about how to keep this column from dying a slow death.

And along comes this big week-end of sport, so what do you think I'm doing?

You guessed it, little chum. I'm going on vacation! Perverse little verser, ain't I?

I was telling Catcher Harold Aston of the Mansfield All-Stars about it. "I'm afraid," I said, "I can't be bothered coming out to your game next Sunday.. I'll be starting my vacation that day."

"Aw," says he, "you're not going to let us down now, with the champs coming to town, are you?"

Honestly, I thought the big lug was going to break right down and weep. So I soothed him. "No, I won't let you down. I'll be there."

I'M JUST TOO DOG-GONE GOOD NATURED!

* * *

So never fret, nor fume, nor fuss men,

Chet Laabs Takes Sock At Apple

Clouts Four Homers In Last Six Days.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THE biggest batting spree of the season is now being staged by little Chet Laabs of the St. Louis Browns and, brother, when he hits, people forget all about the complaint that the ball is deader this year.

* * *

In the last six days he has hit four home runs and driven in 16 tallies, giving him 15 homers and 58 runs batted in this season.

Laabs started his chain of firecrackers against the Yanks last Saturday with a two-run homer off Ernie Bonham in the ninth.

The next day in Boston he socked the Red Sox into submission. He made a double and a single in the first game and in the second game of the doubleheader he batted in five runs, three of them on a homer in the ninth. Monday was an open date and Tuesday the Red Sox sidetracked trouble by walking him twice.

Wednesday night again he drove in five runs at Philadelphia. He homered with the bases loaded in the first inning and tripled with one on in the second, barely being thrown out at the plate trying for an inside the park home run.

Yesterday he drove in four runs to beat the Athletics again, hitting two homers, each with a mate aboard, to help Al Hollingsworth win 5-1. Laabs' impetus has boosted the Browns to a tie with the Detroit Tigers for fourth place.

* * *

Detroit stumbled to its fifth straight defeat and eighth in nine games last night at Washington. The Tigers made six errors and lost 6-5 in ten innings.

The New York Yankees boosted their first place margin to 7½ games by belting the Cleveland Indians 8-5 while the Chicago White Sox nosed out Boston 3-2 Ernie Bonham pitched seven-hit ball for the Yanks' fifth straight triumph, and Joe DiMaggio hit in his 13th game in a row.

At Chicago the wrought-up Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers divided a doubleheader in approximately five hours of serious baseball. The Cubs took the first contest 7-0, but Brooklyn battled back in the nightcap to win 2-1.

* * *

The New York Giants' Carl Hubbell conjured up a four-hit pitching masterpiece that halted the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1. It was Hub's third win and he had a two-hit shutout till the ninth.

* * *

The Phils, led by Danny Litwhiler, who batted in three runs and scored twice, topped the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in ten innings. Cincinnati took a 7-6 decision from the Boston Braves, even though Ernie Lombardi hit his second homer in two days and made three other safeties against his old teammates.

Track Placed In Good Racing Shape

B. Ward Beam who is handling the promotion of the championship midget auto races at the Mansfield fairground Sunday afternoon, July 26th, says that the track will be worked into a smooth and fast condition and a coat of calcium chloride will be applied to make the course dustless. The promoter claims that this process is very simple and makes for good racing and more comfort for the crowd.

* * *

Prize moneys totaling $750 dollars had been put up for the seven events on the program, and while entry blanks have just reached the drivers, the management says that there is bound to be a record turnout of the fastest midgets in the central states.

* * *

This is Mansfield's first time to have an auto race championship, and that being so, plus the fact that this is positively the last chance of witnessing races until after the war is over, a record breaking crowd is expected to be on hand on the 26th.

CUPID CADDIES FOR GIRL GOLF FINALISTS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Cupid might well be caddying for the two finalists in today's battle for the 23rd Ohio Womel's Golf championship.

The finalist—Miss Janet Shock of Dayton and Defending Queen Neoma Copic of Toledo disclosed yesterday— between smiles and putts during the tournament's semi-final round—that they were engaged to men now serving under Uncle Sam's colors.

Miss Shock is engaged to Charles (Buck) Beardsley of Fort Wayne, Ind., now an aviation cadet in Florida. Miss Copic said her fiance was "With troops in Ireland." Neither date has been determined.

B-Loop Race Tightened Up

Elks Beat Tuckers, Trail By Single Point.

Race for the News-Journal B league golf championship was tightened up last evening at Possum Run when the second-place Elks bumped off the loop-leading Tucker Furnitures 4-1 and moved to within one point of the pacesetters.

* * *

Bissman's climbed into a third place tie with Mansfield Printing through a 5-0 victory over Central Fruit, while Tinkey Lumber edged Eagles 3-2.

* * *

Jimmy Morgan captured medal honors for the evening with a 38, while Marion Ward and Hugh Ferguson were second at 40.

Stu Martin Gets His Hits

Makes Good Debut With Minneapolis Millers.

(By Associated Press)

The Minneapolis Millers have been a bit nervous at handing over Shortstop Huck Geary to the Pittsburgh Pirates at a time they were needing all possible strength for the American Association pennant race. But last night's first look at what the Bucs sent west in the deal must have cheered them up a lot.

* * *

Stu Martin, who once played in the association before making a five-year stand with the St. Louis Cards and a one-season appearance with the Pirates, reported for duty at second base and made three hits in three times up in the first game. He had another hit in the nightcap and handled 13 chances without a misplay in the two games.

* * *

The Millers won both games, 7 to 2, and 6 to 5, from Milwaukee, and crept within a fraction of a point of the third-place Brewers.

The Toledo Mud Hens, striving to move up from seventh place, came within a half game of that goal by trimming Indianapolis, 5 to 2.

Louisville called on Lou Lucier to blank the second place Columbus Red Birds, except for Lou Klein's homer in the seventh, and won the game, 9 to 1.

St. Paul fans were spared the necessity of sitting through a practice blackout when Dave Philley socked a 10th inning double and ended the game just before the deadline, the Saints beating Kansas City, 4 to 3.

ADDED TO ROSTER

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Max Macon officially has been added to the Brooklyn Dodgers roster, it was announced today. Macon, purchased from Montreal last Sunday, was made .1 eligible player when reserve infielder Alex Kampouris was sent to the Royals Macon won nine games and lost four for Montreal.

Play Ball In Cow Pastures

KAPOWSIN, Wash.—(Wide World)—Kapowsin and Adna, in western Washington, are rivals for the dubious distinction of having the most unique baseball orchards.

Here, for instance, the center fielder is cut off from his mates by an excavation just back of second base where the highway runs.

This means the center fielder has to move to an unorthodox position, else nobody can see him because he's in the ditch.

One year a visiting coach noticed he only had eight men on the field so he told a bench warmer to go out into center. After the first out he looked again and saw a vacancy. He sent another bench man to center.

Finally the fifth kid sent out there came back and said:

"Coach, there isn't room for me. We've already got four men in center field."

They used to have a Camel's Hump ball field at Adna. Left field was so deep over the hill it was the shortstop's job to run back and yell down at the fielder when a fly was hit that way.

The Adna fielder was famed for never dropping a fly. Back would come the ball as soon as it disappeared over the horizon.

One day the mystery was cleared. The batter hit a tremendously high fly and before it was out of sight, another ball was thrown in from left field. Thereupon a delegation of visiting players ran over the hill and threatened mayhem upon the culprit, who was sitting on a stump smoking and juggling two extra baseballs.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By SID FEDER
(Pinch Hitting For Hugh Fullerton)

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—See by the papers where Buck Newsom may wind up with the Dodgers . . . Can you imagine old Bobo hooking up with Leo the Lip and Loud Larry? . . . There's a parlay for your whiskers . . . When Three Musketeers start cooking up some catch-as-catch-can conversation, the guy who complained about the noise the Ebbets field organ made will think he was living in the guest room of a tomb up to now . . . Incidentally, that Dodger-Cubs feud is so hot right now the explosion is going to knock down the Wrigley field walls one of these afternoons.

That speech Jimmy Conzelman gave the graduating class at Dayton U. on "The young man's mental and physical approach to war," is rapidly becoming a classic . . . And the Natinal pro league is distributing it in booklet form now to meet the requests . . . Ted Lyons says if the army gets him, Uncle Sam's gotta remember he can only fight the war on Sundays . . . Would that mean that if Lefty Gomez got in, he'd bring Johnny Murphy along for those hot spots in the late frames?

LOWDOWN BREAK-DOWN

The other day, the Cards announced attendance figures to baseball writers this way: Paid, 2,984; ladies, 2,915; boys and girls, 1,801; service men, 792; total, 8,492 . . . What, no Mickey Mouse?

OVER THE BACK FENCE

Ward Cuff may quit the pro football jints to go back to Alma Mammy Marquette as a coach . . But you can kiss off the whisper that Don Hutson is getting ready to sign off with the Packers and retire . . . Mr. Forward Pass'll be back there haunting the rest of the league again this fall.

PROPHET DEPT.

The night of the All Star game, Joe DiMaggio sat in the blackout and said he felt as though he finally was pulling out of his slump . . . Well, children, he's hit in every game since then . . . And the fans are finally laying off, after giving him the old Bronx bazoo all season up to now.

Frank Stranahan Still Favored

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Ohio amateur golf tournament is down to the 36-hole semifinals today, with the statistics pointing to a champion from Cincinnati and the odds pointing to Frank Stranahan of Toledo

* * *

Stranahan, 19-year-old defending titlist, and three local hotshops take the Maketewah course today for better or worse. Stranahan meets Doug Hill, 44-year-old broker and former city champion.

* * *

Elmer Tunker, 28-year-old guard at a hush-hush war plant, a long tee shot man but a scrambler who zig-zags from tee to green, plays Bob Myers, 20, a former city junior champion, and co-medalist in the city amateur.

Stranahan played some fuzzy golf after getting medalist honors in the qualifier with a par 72 over the 6,549-yard course, but now seems to have found his game.

Stranahan followed the ball like a machine yesterday in eliminating Bill Podolski of Columbus, 4 and 3 from the quarterfinals. He was two up at the turn and shot straight par golf all the way.

CHARLESTON LOSES TO SPRINGFIELD

CANTON—(AP)— Erie moved within two games of first place Charleston in the Mid-Atlantic league standings last night by taking a 10-inning, 4 to 2 decision from Canton as Springfield defeated the Senators 8 to 7.

The Sailors bunched three hits and a walk for two runs in the extra inning, the winning markers coming on Manager Kerby Farrell's single with the bases loaded. Dayton downed Zanesville 5 to 2.

Present Would Be Acceptable

Lou Observes Birthday, Hopes Tribe Does Too.

NEW YORK—(AP)—If the Cleveland Indians want to give Manager Lou Boudreau a most acceptable birthday present today they can do it by beating the New York Yankees and salvaging one contest of the three-game series here.

Manager Lou celebrates his 25th birth anniversary today with the unhappy thought that his third-place Redskins still suffer slumps when they play in Yankee stadium.

However, yesterday's 8 to 5 defeat had the advantage over Wednesday's shut out in that Oris Hockett and Les Fleming hit home runs, and the Tribe pulled off a brace of double plays.

Cleveland remained two games behind the Boston Red Sox, who lost to Chicago, but the defeat dropped the Indians to 9½ games behind the world champions.

For the Yankees' hurling star, Ernie Bonham, it was sweet revenge as well as his tenth victory of the season. The big right-hander had lost two one-run decisions to the Tribe, 5-4 here and 1-0 in Cleveland.

Lefty Al Smith, who was credited with both victories over Bonham, was given the Indian mound assignment today.

The Indians will play an evening double header a week from tonight, the Cleveland Baseball company reports. A 6 p. m. game has been added to the originally scheduled 8:45 p. m. contest with Washington. Another schedule change eliminated a game with Philadelphia on Saturday, Aug. 1 to create a double bill with the Athletics on the following day.

Travelers Seek Revenge Over Galion Jaycees This Evening

Mansfield Travelers baseball club will be out for revenge this evening at the Fairground when it meets Galion's Jaycees of the Ohio State semi-pro league in the first twilight game of the season here.

* * *

Not so long ago the Travelers played the Ohio State loop club at Galion, and feel that they were counted out of a chance to win as a 6-5 defeat was charged against them.

The Travelers tied the score at 5-5 in the seventh, and when Galion came back with one run in the eighth, the game was called "because of darkness." And the Mansfield fielders claim there was enough daylight left for two more innings of baseball.

Since then the Travelers have been building an enviable record by defeating the V. F. W. at Willard, and swamping the Army Engineers at Bucyrus 19 to 0 as Pat Patterson pitched a no-hit, no-run game. Right now the recently organized Mansfield team appears to be one of the best semi-pro clubs in this section of the state, and is deserving of support by the home fans.

They'll need that support in their experiment of regular Friday twilight ball at the Fairground, and their future plans will depend largely on the way the fans turn out this evening. The game is booked at 7 o'clock.

Blonds Battle For Ohio Amateur Crown.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A "battle of the blonds" was on today for the 23rd Ohio women's golf championship as defending queen Neoma Copic of Toledo and Janet Shock of Dayton, 1938 and 1940 winner, clashed in the 36-hole finals.

* * *

It was the first meeting of these two : ars of the Buckeye state's feminine links contingent, although Miss Copic has fired in five s.ate tournaments and Miss Shock in eight.

* * *

In addition to a desire to place another jewel in their championship crowns, the two finalists had another incentive. Mrs. S. B. Kent, secretary of the Women's Ohio Golf association, said the present event probably would be the last for the duration of the war, and the victor will wear the laurels until the tournament is resumed.

Today's match at Columbus Country club marked Miss Copic's second jaunt to the finals, and Miss Shock's fourth.

In yesterday's 18-hole semi-finals Miss Shock eliminated 17-year-old Carol Lee Sherrets of Coshocton by 5 and 4, missing par by only one stroke, while 24-year-old Miss Copic eliminated 19-year-old Peggy Kirk of Findlay by 4 and 3, skidding three over even figures.

Lengthen Duck Hunting Season

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes today announced that 1942 hunting regulations have been relaxed to permit 10 additional days of duck hunting. Other restrictions on duck hunters have been liberalized, but protection of geese has been tightened.

New 70-day duck hunting seasons will begin on Sept. 26, Oct. 15 and Nov. 2 in the northern, intermediate and southern zones, respectively. Duck hunting hours will be from sunrise to sunset, instead of from sunrise to 4 p. m. Legally killed birds may be possessed for 30 days after the close of the season, instead of 20 days.

DeMille Thriller.

"Reap the Wild Wind," Cecil B. DeMille's latest epic in technicolor, opens Saturday at the Ohio. Lusty thriller of the roaring days of 1840 when America was fighting for freedom of the seas the picture tells the story of two men whose ship ran afoul of piratical salvagers without an ounce of mercy in their being. Headed by John Wayne, Ray Milland and Paulette Goddard the cast included Raymond Massey, Susan Hayward and Robert Preston. Hurricanes, shipwrecks and one of the screen's most exciting battles, an underwater struggle between a man and a giant squid, highlight the picture.

Sentimentalists will be treated to a nostalgic musical feast in "Broadway," a melodrama of New York in 1920, opening Saturday at the Madison. While not a musical feature the picture introduces more than a dozen numbers that have endeared themselves to the public throughout the years. Co-starring George Raft and Pat O'Brien the picture tells the story of an ambitious hoofer, who, on the eve of his big break, becomes involved in a killing. Janet Blair and Marjorie Rambeau are in the cast. "Tough As They Come," with the Dead End Kids, is the second attraction.

Absorbing Drama.

The story of a scheming avaricious woman who plots her own husband's death to satisfy her greed is found in "The Little Foxes," Park attraction based on Lilian Hellman's play by the same name. Starring Bette Davis as "Regina Giddens," the cast includes Herbert Marshall as the husband and Teresa Wright of the New York stage as the daughter. PAM—"Where Am I?" By A. W. Brewerton

I THINK THOSE MEN MUST HAVE FOLLOWED ME HERE FROM THE HOSPITAL! I REMEMBER NOW THEY SAID SOMETHING ABOUT MY HAVING BEEN TO SEE THE INJURED MAN!
THAT MUST HAVE BEEN HOW THEY LOCATED YOU!
BUT DAVID AND MR. CARTER SEEMED PUZZLED ABOUT HOW THE MEN KNEW HORTON HAD THE FORMULA WITH HIM! THEY THINK HORTON HAD PERFECTED IT, WRITTEN IT OUT, AND STARTED FOR THE MILL TO EXPERIMENT. BUT SOMEONE MUST HAVE....
7-17
SEEN HIM WRITE IT OUT, AND, WHEN HE LEFT, TIPPED OFF HANNA! DAVID THINKS THERE MUST STILL BE A LEAK AT THE LABORATORY, A CONFEDERATE OF HANNA'S
THESE ENEMY SPIES ARE CERTAINLY DETERMINED!
RIGHT THEN AT CENTRAL HOSPITAL A MAN SAT UP IN BED--
WHERE AM I? I DON'T REMEMBER THIS ROOM! WHAT'S HAPPENED?

WAITS FOR FISHING TIME

JAFFREY, N. H.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Lizzie Cutter, 84, says the only thing she likes about the maple sugar season is that it keeps her occupied until the fishing season opens. She has been one of the region's ace anglers for nearly 50 years.

The first torpedo, the "spar torpedo" of the American Civil war, was a long ram with a bomb on the end of it.

STOCK MARKET GOES FORWARD BY FRACTIONS

Westinghouse Again Joins In General Recovery Move By Leaders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks generally tacked on fractional advances in today's market transactions.

Gainers included Westinghouse, Goodrich, Socony-Vacuum, General Electric, N. Y. Central and Philip Morris. Unchanged to off a shade were Chrysler and National Steel.

Merchandising company shares had to contend with the survey of Dun & Bradstreet which placed this week's retail spending for the nation as a whole at 3 to 8 per cent under the comparable period a year ago. The set-back was said to have been partly seasonal and partly due to hot weather conditions in a number of dispatches.

A slightly more optimistic picture was painted by the federal reserve board which found the country's department store sales in the previous week were 10 per cent above the like period of 1941. In the week concluded July 4 the year-to-year figure showed a 2 per cent recession.

Cadets to Wear Legion Emblem On New Uniforms

Members of the cadet corps of McVey Post, American Legion, have received approval from national Legion headquarters to wear the organization's official emblem on the uniforms they are to receive in the near future.

The Legion emblem will be placed on the arms of the uniform shirts along with the words, "Mansfield" and "American Legion cadet."

Sam V. Fox, McVey post commander, announced today that the Department of Ohio had recommended approval of the post's request for use of the official emblem.

The corps is made up of youths between the ages of 16 and 19. Approximately 100 are enlisted in the corps, which trains Thursday evenings at the drill field of the armory.

Fox said two restrictions had been placed on the use of the Legion emblem. The emblem must remain the property of the post and must be returned to the post when the cadets progress beyond the point of post sponsorship.
